In the fighting in the Verdun region heavy forces have been thrown into the battle by both sides, but the number of ground troops have not been notably great. The struggle seems to have been most intense in the region of Dead Man's Hill, northwest of the fortresses of Soissons and Verdun. The Germans have taken turns in launching an offensive. The Germans secured a foothold in some of the new French trenches. Berlin conceded a French retreat in the direction of the west of the Meuse, where the trenches have frequently changed hands. Toward the northern end of the western battle line the British have succeeded in regaining a part of the ground they lost in the north of Ypres; their attack resulting in the recapture of about 200 yards of the 600 captured by the Germans on April 19.

His Own Advantage, the Motive of Wilson's Near Ultimatum to the Kaiser, Carr Says.

Analytical FRICTION WITH GERMANY; CHECKERBOARD OF IT.

Wilson's Genealogy Hyphenates Him with the People of England.

In Addition Politics Apparently has Played an Important Part in the Dictation of Notes to Berlin—In a Day of Great Alliances and When American Hopes Were Highest President Ties Hands of Diplomats.

BY HARRY CARR.

BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, April 22.—The trouble with President Wilson is that he is trying to drown himself as Mowgli.

You will remember that Mowgli was the little wolf boy in Kipling's Jungle Book. In the story, the old gray wolf who led the pack became too feeble to kill. The other wolves gathered around him in a murderous circle with dripping jaws and bared fangs, ready to rend him. Mowgli seized a burning brand and, scorching its dazzling sparks in the eyes of the devouring pack, drove them skulking away.

The Jungle Book is the most wonderful essay on political economy ever written. It explains almost every contingency that can arise in this queer struggle called politics. And it explains President Wilson and his drift to the German empire.

The difference between the President and Mowgli is that Mowgli was trying to save a sick old wolf. The President has been trying to save a sick old lion.

WILSON'S ANTECEDENTS.

Mr. Wilson's grandfather was an Englishman. His mother was a native Scotch woman. All his interests, all his tastes, all his opinions are British.

He has the Englishman's shy aloofness, the Englishman's self-sufficiency, the Englishman's unblushing inconsistency and the cultivated Englishman's ability to write.

All the travels that he took while a professor were through England on a bicycle. Before becoming President of the United States, he was Governor of New Jersey and before becoming Governor of New Jersey he was a member of the Senate that is proud to be known as the American Oxford, and whose traditions are avowedly British.

During the course of this war the President has been unable to take the cold, detached, aloof attitude of the English. His acts and demands and negotiations as official head of this nation have been strictly legal, but he has not been neutral. Had the conditions of the belligerents been reversed, a great many things that have happened would not have happened.

To tell the truth of this to ourselves we have only to look at the beginning and the end of these international disputes.

THE PARADOX.

It is a farce around Congress to say that we ought to be more severe to the Germans when England becomes the front of the Kaiser was the greater, the other a matter of property only. Of course even those who say this realize at once that it is the exact opposite of this proposition is true.

Germany has taken American lives in the course of her submarine campaign. But every case she contends it has been the result of accident, that is to say, acts of God. The Germans did not deliberately select ships carrying Americans. On the contrary, they have impeded Americans to keep off ships in the death zone. When our American government has complained of the undoubted outrages the German government has all but gone down on its knees in an effort to mollify our wrath.

The British, on the contrary, have violated our rights with cold deliberate intent. And then have coolly declined to make amends or change their ways.

We have a real challenge to war from Great Britain which opens our diplomatic mail and says she intends to keep on opening our mail and what are we going to do about it?

Her excuse for taking passengers from American ships and for looting American mails is the same excuse as the German gives to the French. Only Germany says she won't do it anymore—and keeps on doing it. While England says plainly that she doesn't care a damn for anybody's rights and will keep on doing it to the end of the chapter.

I don't state these propositions by way of complaint against the President for not twisting the tail of the British Lion. In my humble opinion no one is entitled to any sympathy who tries to gawk down a sidewalk when two men are having a fight and gets one of the flying blows in the eye.

I simply state the obvious fact that Dr. Wilson is taking sides and has been taking sides from the first. His reason for taking sides is莫威爾's reason.

For many centuries the old British Lion has been the lord of the pack. But like the old wolf in the Jungle stories, he has missed his kill. The most astounding fact of this war has been the revelation of British treachery.

England's sun is slowly setting.

The wolf pack is gathering around to pull down the old leader. For some reason it seems important and proper to Dr. Wilson that we should not do this to happen so. President Wilson is trying to play Mowgli.

No one can deny that the President has exerted every effort that he decently or legally could to help England out of莫威爾. He has discovered that his own political life has thereby been put in danger.

The German vote in the United States is a very large and powerful one. The President had figured on that. But with the powerful allied vote. But there was an element in American character that he had not figured on.

AMERICAN REACTION.

Americans are subject to violent to pursue was to stand aloof, holding in her hands the balance of power. The possibilities of this course were so potent that Uncle Sam might have become almost the ruler of the world.

The foreign policy of the President has destroyed this possibility. We are no longer able to make such alliances as from time to time shall be convenient. The President has thrown us into the arms of Great Britain.

We have formed a partnership for what or few we. All that remains for us is to submit to the power of England at first as a junior, but eventually taking over world predominance from England generally as a son takes the weight of authority from his old father. This may be tender and beautiful, but it forces us to take a sick old man to nurse at a strenuous and dangerous period of our national life.

YALE PROFESSOR DEFENDS GERMANY.

DENOUNCES WILSON'S ACTION ON SUBMARINES.

Declares President's Policy has Left the United States Drifting Toward a Cowardly War Against Nation Sorely Beset by the Great Powers.

BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.

NEW HAVEN (Conn.), April 22.—Prof. Yandell Henderson, of Yale University and head of the "Progressive" party in Connecticut today justified Germany's submarine policy and denounced President Wilson's action as one that had left the United States "drifting toward a cowardly war against a nation sorely beset by the Great Powers."

"It is very much like the Parisians in thought, and Napoleon's biographers say that, above all other dangers, he dreaded to have Paris become quiet and bored. He knew the Parisians were likely to turn down somebody for the sake of excitement. Both in France and in America no one is so much in danger as the hero of the hour."

He said that Wilson had had to reckon with "Toward the end of last summer the people of this country got tired of raging about Belgium and began looking around for someone else to do with their sympathies."

The German-American sympathists offered some temptation. When the old smoldering hatred of England that every American school boy learns in his kindergarten days began to stir, there was evident a gradual but strong change of sentiment.

The President saw it was all up to him to get busy.

Englishmen have political opportunities. This has been strikingly illustrated in the diplomatic negotiations of the past two years. Whenever this government has tenderly requested of England an explanation of some broad and rising issue she has withheld her answer until Germany committed some fresh breach; then murmured her explanation. Take the case of the protest made by the United States against the removal of German prisoners from an American ship in Chinese waters. England made no reply to our protests until the United States became enraged over the sinking of the Susan by Germany; then she made reply.

AN OPPORTUNIST.

The President has this British characteristic; he also is an opportunist. This has been strikingly illustrated in the diplomatic negotiations of the past two years. Whenever this government has tenderly requested of England an explanation of some broad and rising issue she has withheld her answer until Germany committed some fresh breach; then murmured her explanation. Take the case of the protest made by the United States against the removal of German prisoners from an American ship in Chinese waters. England made no reply to our protests until the United States became enraged over the sinking of the Susan by Germany; then she made reply.

AGAINST GERMANY.

When he saw the trend of the floating sympathies of America, he began a series of carefully-timed "revolutions." The Department of Justice began to do with the German outrages the same thing that the Parisians were likely to do with the German outrages.

The "Von Papen" was followed by the "Lokal Anziger."

EVEN CAPTURE OF VILLA WOULDN'T SETTLE MEXICO

Erroneous Idea Regarding Mexico Fostered by the Administration Can Only be Corrected by Understanding of Real Situation—American Interests are Treated with Contempt with no Hope of Redress from Washington.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.

OGALES (Ariz.) April 22.—

There is an erroneous idea throughout the United States that the trouble in Mexico is due to some bandits headed by Pancho Villa, and that the Mexican administration is the victim of these outlaws.

This view of the situation is abetted by the President of the United States, and there is scarcely a handful of people who seem to realize that if Villa should die today the trouble in Mexico would continue without abating.

Senor Villa made the occasion. In view of his past record, it was absolutely essential that the President should conduct a brilliant and impetuous military campaign in the pursuit of Villa. He had against his record the ill-fated General Carranza, where he went down to compel a salute to the American flag and retired without the salute. This time he had to come home with the scalp.

The Villa expedition has proved to be more fruitless and more silly than the Vera Cruz expedition. It was openly stated about the capital that Wilson would stay on in inverse to Villa. If the troops were brought back without Villa, it would cost Wilson the Presidency.

TOO PROUD TO FIGHT.

For two years Mr. Wilson has suffered from American mail and says she doesn't do it anymore—and keeps on doing it. While England says plainly that she doesn't care a damn for anybody's rights and will keep on doing it to the end of the chapter.

I don't state these propositions by way of complaint against the President for not twisting the tail of the British Lion. In my humble opinion no one is entitled to any sympathy who tries to gawk down a sidewalk when two men are having a fight and gets one of the flying blows in the eye.

America has started on her way to a world career. It is impossible to turn back. This has become an era of new alliances. Nations no longer fight alone.

TOWN OF NAMIQUIPA OF IMMENSE AREA.

SAID TO HAVE LARGEST SITE OF ANY IN THE WORLD.

About 300 Men, Women and Children Occupy 444 Square Miles of Territory Which had been Originally Granted to the Spaniards Three Centuries Ago.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE

CHIHUAHUA (Max.), April 18.

The town of Namiquipa, which is situated in a remote part of the State of Chihuahua, was distinguished long before it began to be mentioned in the press dispatches as the "front" headquarters of the American military punitive expedition. It is claimed that Namiquipa occupies the largest area of any town in the world. Its townsites embrace 444 square miles or sixty-four sitios. The pueblo has a population of about 300 men, women and children, most of whom are of mixed Spanish and Indian blood. The 284,000 acres that are contained in the townsites are owned jointly by the people who live in Namiquipa. Aside from the fact that each family has a priority claim to a strip of land that runs to the Namiquipa River, thereby giving it a water right for irrigation purposes, there is no separate farming done. The ordinarily-contented and peace-loving inhabitants of the town plant their crops anywhere on the big tract of land that they choose. With the exception of the small irrigated tracts, no recognition of private ownership of the land is given.

GRANT TO SPANIARDS.

The 444 square miles of land which the town of Namiquipa occupies were granted to a colony of Spaniards by the King of Spain about three centuries ago. This ancient land grant has been respected by the Mexican government ever since the overthrow of Spanish domination of the country. Most of the present population of the unique town are descendants of the original colonists. Comparatively little information with the native Indians of the adjacent tribes has been obtained.

Riley was an unwilling witness in a civil suit in which one witness was plaintiff and the other defendant. He didn't want to testify because he had an aversion to courts and, besides, he had an aversion to them, formed when he gave up the study of Blackstone in his early manhood.

One of the lawyers in the case, a poor fellow with a just-watch-and-settle-this-fellow-has bearing, became angered when Riley apparently avoided answering his questions. He spoke to Riley sharply: "Now, look here, Mr. Riley; this won't do. You're not answering my questions. Let's get down to facts now. You know about the Indians. You studied for the bar once and you know law. Isn't that true?"

"No," Riley drawled in reply. "I don't know any more law than you do."

DECISION ON MEXICO TO BE MADE TUESDAY

Gen. Scott will Hasten Back to Washington in Time to Report to Cabinet Meeting Concerning the Situation of Pershing Expedition as He has Learned it from Funston.

BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE

WASHINGTON, April 23.—A decision as to whether American troops will be withdrawn from Mexico may be reached by President Wilson and his Cabinet Tuesday. This was indicated tonight when it was reported from San Antonio that Maj.-Gen. Scott, sent by Secretary Baker to investigate the military problems confronted by Gen. Funston and his men, might be back in Washington in time for his report to be laid before the regular meeting of the Cabinet on that date.

Secretary Baker declined to discuss the probable meaning of Gen. Scott's desire to hasten back to the front without extending his stay for information beyond conferences with Gen. Funston and his officers at department headquarters. Officials have consistently refused to say anything whatever about the problems under consideration since the request for the withdrawal of the troops came from Gen. Carranza.

Shook him easily.

It is known, however, from border advice that Gen. Funston feels that he cannot go farther with the pursuit of Villa, than he already has gone unless he is heavily reinforced and his hands freed to some extent at least in dealing with problems of supply and inferior numbers.

Gen. Scott's decision to return at once generally was taken to mean that he had reached the same conclusion and would so report to Secretary Baker.

In this connection it is recalled that President Wilson specifically rejected plans for an immediate movement in pursuit of Villa mapped out by the General Staff immediately after the Columbus raid. The scope of those plans never has been Enormous Length to Which Wilson has Inscribed Himself.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger:] It is said that the President, signing his name 50,000 times a year, each signature three inches long, has written two and a third miles of autograph. It is given to few men to inscribe themselves so largely upon the landscape of international diplomacy and domestic negotiation. President Wilson recently asked the Postmaster to find out how to do nothing but write notes and send stationery bill of the State Department is certainly assuming alarming proportions. There have been difficulties with the signature of the President, much to go by as when it was appended to the Emancipation Proclamation. There is a danger that with the frequency of repetition it will become a drag on the post office mail.

SIX AEROPLANES BURNED AS JUNK

Machines Used in Mexico
Found to be Useless.

Pershing Now Spends Time Strengthening Line.

Expeditionary Commander at Namiquipa.

BY A. P. DAY WIRE]

COLUMBUS, (N. M.) April 22.—Pickets of the six of eight aeroplanes which have been used by the expeditionary force in Mexico have been destroyed as worthless junk. Two of the planes down here earlier in the week are now undergoing repairs. With the half in field operation it was determined that none of the planes remaining in Mexico would be flown and all were burned. Col. D. Foulis, commanding the First Aero Squadron, and his allies made are now on their way from the field in motor cars to pervise, equip and prepare them for service in the high altitude of Mexico.

American troops in the field utilized their time during the last few days in strengthening the positions, detachments being concentrated at strategic points along the line of communication, extending almost 500 miles south of the border is being strengthened by a detachment from Columbus of a detachment from the cavalry going forward to the United States to act without delay.

Gen. Pershing's army continued active and quiet was reported along the American line. The command, however, has established communication with Namiquipa that he may close communication with Gen. H. Scott and Gen. Frederick Stoen in San Antonio.

Messages from some of the advanced expeditionary column went to Gen. Pershing today via the Mexican telegraph line from Juarez, being relayed from there to Columbus and from there to Namiquipa by aerial wireless, thus completing a circle. The contents of these messages were revealed here.

Real Boss of the House.

"Not at all, gentlemen; play as long as you please, I car here!" said the master of the house.

"Play as long as you please, gentlemen; play as long as you please," said a silvery voice, as all rose as the mistress of the house stood before them. "Play as long as you please, gentlemen; it is nearly 1 o'clock, the car is locked to bed."

The poor girl was almost in tears from nervousness. "But, mother," she pleaded, "whatever can I talk to him?" The mother replied, "You'll hit him if you do one more." It was the night when the debutantes came running into her mother's room, a happy rush on her young faces. "I've had a perfect day," she announced, "and I think the show must go on. ARIZONA ORGANIZES
TO FIGHT NEBRASKA.

BY A. P. DAY WIRE.] (Colo.) April 22.—Plans for the organization of a dual military occupation of a part of Northern Mexico in case hostilities might seek return to the whole territory would have swept so that no Villa follower desire to avoid war.

The administration felt that the administration was that the expeditionary force would follow. Military experts on the border seem little doubt that the course will be followed.

This opposition, they believe, is due to the fact that the sole object of the capture of Villa, would not be the administration of the South Plate.

There is no reason to believe the administration has changed its viewpoint. If Gen. Scott's view is correct, the restraints imposed by friendly nature and largely forced or withdrawn entirely, will seem little doubt that the course will be followed.

Military experts on the border seem little doubt that the course will be followed.

Agitating. LONGSHOREMEN TO ASK RAISE.

Same Wages at All Ports of Coast the Demand.

Scheme of Bay City Owners to Regain Lost Trade.

Secession and Disruption of Union Likely.

Following close on the heels of the demand of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific for an increase in wages, it is stated by the members of the Pacific Coast Longshoremen's Association that a demand is to be made for a flat rate of 55 cents per hour and $1 for overtime at every port on the Pacific Coast from San Diego to Vancouver.

Four delegates, representing the two locals here, will leave tomorrow on the steamer Congress to attend the convention of the Pacific Coast branch at Seattle, where the demands will be discussed. The wages asked are higher than have ever been paid on the Pacific Coast.

For San Francisco and Portland the raise is but 5 cents per hour on straight time. Here 50 cents per hour and $1 overtime are paid on all trans-steamers from foreign ports. On coastwise steamers the rate is but 60 cents and 75 cents. For dock workers, the present rate is 40 cents and 60 cents per hour.

It is expected the proposed increase will meet with opposition by Seattle employers, where the wages are less than the San Francisco scale. San Francisco is generally believed to be the back of the proposed increase, many goods being sent for all ports, as considerable business has been lost to Seattle on account of the lower rates at that port.

Another question that will probably provoke debate is that of according to the International Longshoremen's Association, which got into trouble last year when T. V. Conner, president of the International, spent considerable time on the Coast and succeeded in making an agreement with the employers at all Pacific Coast ports.

LADIES ARE SORE.

There has been some soreness on the part of the San Francisco leaders since then, because they did not get all they expected. Conner proved to be a compromiser and a compromise some of the San Francisco leaders did not want. Should he be disown by the American Federation of Labor and the local organizations will have no standing in Pacific Coast labor councils.

Sentiment in favor of seceding, however, would be strong, because instead a fight is to be made for the flat wage scale for all Pacific Coast ports. If they fail to get it the San Francisco delegates, which are in a majority, threaten to withdraw, even though they lose the support of the Gompers organization.

Officers of Southern California are seeking an "inside" worker suspected of stealing jewelry at Hotel Virginia, yesterday, valued at $255. Mrs. A. Moore of Syracuse is the loser and the articles consist of two lockets, a diamond ring and a baby pin.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Tolhurst, who presided. Mr. Tolhurst introduced each of the visiting suffrage advocates, and briefly told of what they have accomplished in their own State, toward enfranchising women.

Willis H. Booth was the introducer. In his opening speech he spoke of the pleasure which was his in meeting so many prominent political workers. Then he entered into a discussion of the political issues which confront the nation, and said "It becomes imperative for the State to stand before a body of women and tell them how strong he is for woman's suffrage and how helpful has been the participation of women in the political cause." In his story of its success, simple and clear, he makes a deep impression upon the political thought of our country, and I sincerely believe that the day is not far off when all the wisdom of the nation, and the enfranchisement of women will be complete throughout the nation.

MAY MORNING.

Decision.

FIND BANKER'S SLAYER GUILTY.Jurymen Bring in Verdict of Second-degree Murder.After Attorneys Make Plea that Leniency be Shown.Sentence will be Pronounced Next Tuesday Morning.

The jury trying Thomas Mizar, Tropic banker, returned at 9 o'clock last evening with a verdict of murder in the second degree. Mizar was remanded to the County Jail awaiting sentence, which will be passed Tuesday morning.

Yesterday's proceedings prior to the departure of the jury for its secret deliberations were brief. Attorneys Fleming and Williams both counseled the intention of Mizar to commit suicide. Richardson, his best friend, "They got him because of the defendant, his physical disabilities and the reasons these presented for leniency. Their plea was based on psychological grounds, following the detailed confession of Mizar to me."

Dist.-Atty. Woolwin laid stress on the probable motives which had caused Mizar to commit the crime. He declared the man had possibly carried his grudge against Mr. Richardson for weeks, and weeks particularly after the latter had refused to co-operate with him in the consummation of a business deal which meant money to the impoverished defendant. "Carrying such a grudge, it did not require much to move him to commit the explosion of his feelings resulting in the shooting down of his best friend," said the District Attorney.

In closing his argument he called attention to the necessity of protecting society from such violent acts, the infliction of the maximum penalty.

Judge McCormick's instructions were brief and to the point, indicating an explanation of the various degrees of murder clearly.

Made Thyrod in India.

[Boston Transcript:] Thyrod will be manufactured in India, where the raw material for it is plentiful. The advice given by the technical laboratory of the Government of the United Provinces of India is taken. In a circular, the laboratory says that the price of the drug rose enormously after it began because the supplies of foreign Ointments were stopped, reaching the figure of 20 shillings a pound, as against 5 or 6 shillings before the war. Already a Indian company is manufacturing the drug, and the circular points out that, even under favorable conditions, the industry should be profitable in India. Raw material exists in abundance, and the capital required is simple and cheap, and the demand both in India itself and Great Britain is great.

Automobile Laundry.

[Dundee Advertiser:] The Echo of Berlin has given an account of the new automobile laundry which now accompany the German soldiers. They consist of two large tubs drawn by a cart and drawn by the other men. The first produces the necessary steam, and has also an apparatus for rapidly drying and rinsing the washed linen. The second the washing, rinsing and so on, and the third carries away the waste of coal, wood and utensils. When work the laundry must, however, close to a pond, a well or a stream capable of providing plenty of water. It is run with a staff of twenty-four men. The lines of 2000 soldiers can be washed, dried and infected in about twenty-four hours, and that in this way whole regiments can be kept immune from parasites and infectious disorders.

A County Community House.

[Indianapolis News:] The first county community house will be erected in the United States in Marion county, Indiana, by young people of both sexes. Two buildings will be built, one venture will consist of a gymnasium, theater, swimming pool, sunrooms, and quarters for keeping and judging high-grade dogs, while the other will be a home for the young, which the region is short of. Members of the community and Hannah H. Johnson have formed a stock company which will finance this ambitious venture. The idea is one that seems bound to spread, especially where sizeable cities are concerned.

Educating the Belgians.

[Providence Journal:] We must educate the Belgians, says a German newspaper. That is in line with the German ambition to dominate the whole world. There are no "jingo-fairies" in the German programs. People there must do as they please. They must do as the German man does. They must do as the German woman does. If they do not like the German way, so much the better. The "education" of the Belgians, which the Germans are commanding, has proceeded already to great lengths. They have learned without military excess and rapacity. The Belgians have been beaten over a year in armament, and the oppression. And the lesson is unforgettable written in their blood.

Want Shoes and Motor Cars.

[Chicago News:] Word comes from South Africa that the demand for American boots and shoes is very great in that district, and increased every day. From another quarter, the southern states in America, our consuls write in, American automobiles are gaining popularity, and that if consumers in the United States can be made to buy them as commerce with America, the market will be greatly enlarged. And this is probably true, for the economy is passed directly to the consumer.

Fighting British Teachers.

[Baltimore Star:] Eleven thousand, four hundred British men teachers are serving with the forces, and about 9000 have attested under the Derby scheme. In addition there are 147 serving with naval forces and 236 women acting as nurses. Teachers have already gained five Victoria Crosses, while 232 have been killed, 118 wounded and 9 are missing.

SHAGE DEFENDS CON DECISION.*Shakespeare's Friends Simply not Posted.They Just Repeat What They Have been Told.College Professors Say He is as a Fool.SHAKESPEARE.

His theater is the soul, and man and woman His infinite repertory; age on age, Treading his fancy's stage, Ephemeral shadows of his master mind, We act our parts—the human Players of scenes long since by him designed; And stars, that blaze in tinsel on our boards, Shine with a moment's immortality. Because they are his understudies, free For one aspiring hour to sound his magic chords, Not for scholars and their brain-born scripts, Nor there behind the footlights' fading glow Shakespeare survives; ah, no! Deep in the passionate reality Of raging life above the darkling crypts Of death, he meditates the o'er to be Or not to be" of millions, yet to whom His name is nothing; there on countless quests, Unlettered Touchstones quibble with his jests, Unlaureled Hamlets yearn, and anguished Lears uploom.

Leave, then, to Avon's aspire and silver stream Their memory of ashes sing and sighed: Our Shakespeare never died.

Nor ever was born, save as the god is born From every soul that dares to doubt and dream, He dreams—but is not mortal; eve and morn, Dirge and delight float from his brow like prayer.

Beside him, charmed Apollo lifts his lyre; Below, the heart of man smolders in fire; Between the two be stands, timeless—the post-player.

*Prescribed.PRAISES TOBACCO AS HEALTH GIVER.*COURTS LADY NICOTINE LATE BUT WITH ARDOR.

Former Montana Governor is Grateful the Dose was not Cigarettes, When His Doctors Ordered Him to Use the Seductive Weed for His Stomach's Sake.

Former Gov. Rickards of Montana, one of the most prominent men of the Northwest, who is a guest at the Clark Hotel, began using tobacco sixteen years ago, when he was 52 years old. He explained yesterday that his family physician recommended the use of tobacco to improve his health. Nevertheless, he declared he is opposed to smoking cigarettes. Mr. Rickards weighs 200 pounds and appears to be in excellent condition.

"Nicotine has been my medicine now for sixteen years and I have taken a dose after each meal. I had a peculiar form of dyspepsia, which the doctors were not able to cure, due to indigestion and annoyance from the lack of moisture in my mouth. Consequently, the doctor recommended the use of tobacco to stimulate the activity of the salivary glands. Immediately after I began the use of tobacco, my complaint, which had cost me thousands of dollars and great suffering, disappeared."

"I had been opposed to the use of tobacco and was now opposed to the use of it except for medical purposes. I am gratified that it has never been necessary for me to smoke cigarettes."

Gov. Rickards was born in Delaware. In 1881 he came to Colorado, where he remained until 1885, going then to San Francisco to live four years. From California he went to Montana, where he took an active part in the upbuilding of that State commercially and politically. He was elected Governor of the State on the Republican ticket in 1892, serving until 1897. Previously he had been an Alderman in Butte, a member of the State Legislature, and a member of the constitutional convention which framed the State's present Constitution.

OLD-LINE RALLY.

South Pasadena Republicans Get Back of G.O.P. Leaders and Promise to Help Elect the "Lower Half" of Official Ballot.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE)

SOUTH PASADENA, April 22.—Attended by a large and representative crowd of "old line" Republicans, a rally of the Sixty-ninth Assembly District, held this evening at the South Pasadena High School, developed a measure of enthusiasm for G.O.P. principles that presages well for the success in this section of the party's electoral candidate in the coming election. The Sixty-ninth District includes a part of Pasadena, Alhambra, South Pasadena, Sierra Madre, Monrovia and San Marino.

Jonathan S. Dodge of South Pasadena presided. Speeches explaining why there are to be two sets of electoral candidates and asking the support of all true Republicans for those on the lower half of the ballot were made by C. E. Peet, brother of the former Vice-President Fairbanks; Judge Walter Bordwell of Los Angeles, F. J. Stutesman, former American Minister to El Salvador, represented by F. W. Britt of Los Angeles and Dudley W. Robinson of South Pasadena. F. C. Fairbanks is president of the Republican Club for this district. He was aided in arranging for last night's meeting by G. B. Scheweiss and Guy R. Crump of South Pasadena.

A large delegation from the Republican Club of Los Angeles was present, as well as a number of the "lower half" electoral candidates. Besides the ratification speeches organization plans for the coming campaign were discussed.

The Thirty-seventh street P.T.A. will hold its next regular meeting on Friday, April 28, at the Hotel del Coronado.

Mrs. Brook of the College Women's Association will speak on "Literacy" and dates for office will be nominated.

The Micheltona Parent-Teacher Association will give a play, "Old Maid's Conviction," Friday evening, to lay out the greater gardens of the new school building.

This school with its broad front upon Sunset boulevard will be one of the scenic places on the way to Hollywood and the beach and friends of the school and parents invited gamely to a dinner, postponed, and organized last fall.

The influence of subdued tones charms the Paediatricians and friends of the school and parents to make this much time to making these preparations.

With an all-day meeting in beautiful grounds of the Whittier school, members of various Parent-Teacher associations invited gamely to a dinner, postponed, and organized last fall.

The organization is president of the new organization, with vice-presidents from each of the districts, represented.

Mrs. McDaniel, a daughter of Santa Gertrudis and a bride-elect.

Barbara, Helen and Mildred Lewis and Jane Gato, who have been chosen to represent the Fairbanks family.

The flattening and cutting departments were opened up this week, and the plant is now shipping glass.

GRAVE CHARGE AS MARRIAGE SEQUEL.

GIRL'S MOTHER ACCUSES MAN AFTER ELOPEMENT.

Action Based on Ground no Final Divorce Decree was Obtained by Young Wife Before Second Ceremony—Now Seriously Ill at County Hospital.

Chas. Edmund Mansfield of No. 228 West Eighty-second street, with having contributed to the delinquency of his daughter, Mrs. Winifred Steward, Mrs. Daisy Bullock of No. 113½ South Olive street, went to Santa Ana yesterday and swore to a warrant for his arrest.

Mrs. Steward, who is 19 years of age, it is declared, was married to Mansfield in Santa Ana April 19, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. G. Kennedy of the United Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Steward received an interlocutory decree of divorce from John W. Steward March of this year. There has been no final decree, and the original action is based on the ground that the reported marriage of April 19 could not have been legal.

Mrs. Steward is at the County Hospital in a critical condition, because of the premature birth of a child, now dead.

Mrs. Bullock says Mansfield visited her daughter every day and that he threatened the girl with bodily injury if she did not do as he wanted. But she stated that she did not know just what he meant. Mansfield denies he ever uttered such threats.

When Mrs. Bullock went to the hospital she saw her daughter, Mansfield, who she said had visited her in the girl's room by the nurse, who spoke of Mr. Mansfield as the girl's husband. The mother went to the District Attorney's office and secured an order from Deputy District Attorney Norton, who permitted her to see her daughter.

Mrs. Bullock says that was the first intimation she had that a ceremony had been performed. Upon investigation, she says, she found her daughter, on April 20, had gone to Santa Ana with Mansfield, instead of going to Santa Monica to see a girl friend, as the mother understood, and that the daughter and Mansfield were married in Santa Ana on that date.

The mother states that Mansfield has been out of work since last Christmas and that he ate supper at the Bullock home nearly every night. This Mansfield denies.

French are Learning.

(Engineering Magazine)—A still greater handicap to the student engineer is the psychology of the French workmen. They will do artistic work and can make the best qualities of special steel, but they will not do a day's work at heavy tasks. Two years ago the very thought of a rapid increase in the cost of living gave them nervous prostration. This war, however, has aroused the French people from their lethargy, and in the future it is possible they will occupy as large a place in the world of industry as they now do in the field of art.

MAY DIE OF HURTS.

Woman is Struck by a Motor Car as She Attempts to Board Troley Coach—Skull's Fractured by the Blow; Other Injuries.

Struck by an automobile driven by S. F. Potter of No. 308 West Fifty-seventh street early last night, she was crossed near Forty-eighth street, corner of Madison avenue. Mrs. Anna Morris of No. 1445 West Fifty-first street was perhaps fatally injured.

At the Receiving Hospital, where she was taken for treatment, it was found her skull was fractured and she had many other injuries. She will be removed to a private hospital some time today.

According to police of Mrs. Morris, who investigated, Mrs. Morris was struck by the automobile while she was attempting to board a street car. She became confused when she saw the approaching motor car and ran in front of it.

Up to late hour last night Mr. Potter was held at University Station.

COUNCIL WILL CONSIDER POWER PLAN WEDNESDAY.

Electrical Engineer Preparing Comparison of Income Under Paralleling Scheme and Under Proposition Offered by Operating Companies — Folly of Extravagant Duplication Told to City Club Members.

CONSIDERATION by the City Council of the proposal of the power companies to sell their distributing lines will be taken up in committees of the whole next Wednesday morning, according to President Retkouski. Electrical Engineer Scattergood of the power bureau is preparing a statement analyzing the offer made by the power companies, in which he proposes to compare the income promised if the offer of the companies is accepted with the estimated income if the city should proceed with the plan for duplicating the distribution lines immediately.

The other official developments yesterday in the campaign of the Chamber of Commerce and the Business Men's Committee to prevent the wasteful and extravagant duplication of the existing distributing systems of the power plants within the city limits.

At a luncheon of the City Club, Robert A. Rowan and Col. W. H. Holabird presented their statement of the business men and taxpayers of the city, supporting their contention that the proper and business-like procedure for the city is to accept the offer of the power companies who will bring immediate returns from the city's power plants without duplicating the distributing systems at enormous expense.

EXTRAVAGANCE THE ISSUE.

Their arguments were seconded strongly by the municipal supporters of municipal ownership and Mr. Kelly stated the question before the taxpayers of the city today is not whether municipal ownership shall be retained, but, rather, whether wasteful extravagance and foolish expenditures shall be permitted.

"Great questions of today are settled by arbitration," said Mr. Kelly. "Arbitration is the modern method of settling disputes that are not for all concerned and we have a question before us now that is worthy of serious consideration. If we have been met at the head of the city administration, there is no reason why they cannot get together with the power companies on a business basis and settle the question of purchasing the power distributed in such a way that will be fair to all. I am first in all the time an advocate of municipal ownership of public utilities, but I want to say right here that no man worth his salt has a share of stock in the municipal power, but if it makes no better business showing than it has made to date. In this controversy municipal ownership is not on trial, but rather municipal extravagance."

BOND FUNDS AVAILABLE.

Following the discussion, it was agreed by Mr. Rowan and Col. Holabird, the question of utilizing the bond funds on hand was raised and Col. Holabird effectively set the matter aside by quoting W. H. Mathews, special counsel for the public service department, as saying the bond money can be used for any purpose.

"Sir, I am sorry with whom I have been closely associated for years and in my presence that this bond money can be used for any purpose whatever," said Col. Holabird. "This statement was definite and I am willing to make it again. There is no strength in the contention that this money must be used for building parallel lines."

Mr. Rowan, in his address, called attention to the present situation affecting the real estate market and asserted excessive taxation has brought about a condition greatly to be regretted.

"You strike at the real estate business you strike at the very heart of prosperity in Los Angeles," said Mr. Rowan.

"It is time now that we call a halt on certain municipal work. We have spent millions on our water and we have completed our aqueduct at a cost of more than thirty millions. We are glad for what we have done, but it is time to call a halt. If, eventually, we are to own our own lighting system complete, let us do so, but let us go about it in a sensible, fair and honest manner. This is the sort of a proposition that has been made to the city by the power companies and we should take advantage of it. The companies offer to take the power from the municipal plants—all we can understand the money will be fair rates and the bill will pay the money in definite amounts and at fixed times, at rates to be set by the State Railroad Commission, and distribute this current at fixed rates, that will also be fixed by the Railroad Commission."

RETURNS AT ONCE.

"Here we have a chance to get revenue immediately and we can turn the city into a cash machine. It can be used to keep down or to reduce the burden of taxation. We are going to have municipal ownership but we want it in a way that will not call for more bond issues and increased taxation. That has well been said. 'What does it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his soul.' But I add, 'What will it profit a man if he save 50 cents on his light bill and lose his home through increased taxation?'

"We are urging upon the City Council the advisability of entering into arrangements with the power companies, whereby they will take our power and we will take the revenue that will come immediately and be available for the general fund of the city and lessen the burden of taxation that is a menace to growth and prosperity."

Col. Holabird prefaced his address with the statement that he is a business man and not an orator, and he hoped to say something that would lead his hearers to give sober and careful thought to the situation.

TIME FOR CALM.

"I have been charged with being a propagandist, but for the last six years as receiver for the California Development Company, I have been fighting the greatest corporations of the West," he said. "When I retired from that position I told Mr. Mathews who had been my counsel, 'Let me present a proposal towards keeping down my bills and I would seek to prevent the duplication of the electric distributing systems of the city. Mr. Mathews, who is ordinarily one of the kindest of men, turned on me and his face became as hard as the iron we were classing as hard." Col. Holabird can't do it. In this situation there ought to be a disposition to reason calmly and carefully. It is no disgrace for any body of men to reverse themselves when they find they are wrong.

"The trouble with Los Angeles and the world today is the great travesty. It begins in the humblest home and it ends in the City Hall and the Hall of Records; the tendency is universal. Here the city proposes to invest millions in paralleling existing transmission lines. This is a crying need for such procedure for every home is provided with lights at reasonable rates. This municipal ownership proposition is no more or less than a fad, and it was not contemplated by our forefathers when they founded the nation."

Following the addresses of Mr. Rowan and Col. Holabird, a number of questions were asked and answered and the City Club voted to schedule a debate on the question for next week, when speakers will be selected from each side of the controversy.

Mrs. V. H. York at Santa Ana, Refugee from Troubled Republic, Had Received No Word from Husband Till Reading of Fresh Outbreaks and Mr. York's Safety.

THE FIRST NEWS

The first news that Mrs. V. H. York of No. 1901 West First street, Santa Ana, had received of her husband in several months has just come in news dispatches from Mazatlan, telling of the escape of Mr. York from death at the hands of bandits. Others who were with him when the attack occurred were killed.

"We had been living in Mexico seven years when the first disturbance around us came in 1910. The year before, my husband was in charge of a mine at San Jose, near Sinaloa, when we decided that it was time for the women and children to leave. We approached Sinaloa."

"I have been charged with being a propagandist, but for the last six years as receiver for the California Development Company, I have been fighting the greatest corporations of the West," he said. "When I retired from that position I told Mr. Mathews who had been my counsel, 'Let me present a proposal towards keeping down my bills and I would seek to prevent the duplication of the electric distributing systems of the city. Mr. Mathews, who is ordinarily one of the kindest of men, turned on me and his face became as hard as the iron we were classing as hard."

Col. Holabird can't do it. In this situation there ought to be a disposition to reason calmly and carefully. It is no disgrace for any

MAKING OLIVE KNOWN.Groves Plan Big Advertising of Day of the Savory Fruit.

Thousands of stickers, postcards and colored posters were delivered to the headquarters of the California Olive Association at 214 Wilcox Building, yesterday, that will announce to the public in a special manner the date of "California Olive Day" on May 10. According to P. R. Lance, secretary of the association, much of this printed matter is being sent East. Hotels, cafes, grocers and others handling ripe olives have given their assurance of helping to spread the word that has been designated in a special way to call attention to this little-known California product. Locally, any person who can advantage of the services of either stickers or cards is welcome to them. The Chamber of Commerce, members of the Realty Board and other civic organizations have promised to assist in the campaign of education carried on by the olive growers.

STAMPED.SHERIFF'S PROBLEM IN MATHEMATICS.*CANT MAKE OF TWICE EIGHT TWENTY-FOUR.

To Obey the Law Must Work Jail Matrons Only Eight Hours, and Have One Constantly on Duty, Still is Permitted but Two Women for the Office.

Sheriff Cline wants to know how to divide twenty-four hours between two women employees who can only work eight hours, not only according to the State law, but according to the recent edict issued by the Board of Supervisors, advising all department heads of the county that under no circumstances shall a woman employee be on her job over the prescribed time.

When Sheriff Cline several weeks ago requested an additional matron for the County Jail, the board turned him down flat, Supervisor Norton suggesting that he would have to get along on his present staff, which contains only two matrons. The State law indicates that a matron must be on duty at all times during the twenty-four hours each day in order to comply with the eight-hour law, but this request was refused.

"Now you instruct me that the strain of taxation has been enormous, but the silver lining can now be seen and, therefore, I am asking in my own behalf and for thousands who have also been compelled to borrow money to meet these tax payments, that the time be extended until the first Monday of June. We are on the verge of a great improvement in business conditions and, in my opinion, the part of the Council will assist materially in its advancement."

PRECEDENT SET.

Tax Collector Conrad was called in conference with the Finance Committee. Only once has the city postponed the date and that was in 1910, when the State law was in action this year, Mr. Conrad said, the result will be that many checks mailed in now in his office will be stopped and it will not be possible to close his accounts at the end of the year.

The last available figures on city taxes showed that while the tax rolls for the year of 1915-16 showed $5,121,084, only about half of that amount had been paid in.

"Approximately $4,900,000 remains unpaid at the present time."

According to final figures obtainable yesterday, a total of $7,949,728.41 had been taken in by the county. The receipts of the morning were several hundred thousand dollars, the officers of County Tax Collector's Office being occupied until the doors were closed at noon.

SLOW PAYMENTS.

The entire tax levy for the year, $12,470,445.54, will produce about $2,000,000 more revenue than that obtained in the previous year. The receipts during the first half of the year were 10 per cent behind in the first half of the year.

An extra staff of assistants has been installed to handle the final rush of the last week and particularly that of tomorrow. In addition to the 5 per cent increase, delinquent accounts after Monday will be charged for 50 cents for each item will be charged for advertising the property on which taxes have failed to come in.

A property not accounted for by July 1, will be sold by the State for redemption within five years. When the delinquent property is advertised this year, all property which has been delinquent since 1910 and in the hands of the State for redemption, will be advertised for sale at public auction.

MAY DISAPPOINT MIRACLES.

Miracles Smith wants a clairvoyant's license. He presented a request to the Board of Supervisors yesterday according to usual procedure during the past few months. Miracles will be disappointed, the board having turned him down in such applications.

It was suggested by C. McPherson of the board that because of Smith's unusual first name he might be able to make a better impression than others in the same business.

The matter will come up for decision on Tuesday and in the new light, will probably be settled by the appointment of the additional matron.

Movement to Have California Legislature Mix in on Proposed Regulation of Motor Fuel Prices is Shelved in Favor of Attempt to Get Federal Assistance.

Consideration of the Council resolution which proposed to ask the Governor to call a special session of the Legislature to place gasoline under the jurisdiction of the State Railroad Commission resulted yesterday in a vote of the City Council to refer the matter to the California Congressional delegation urging them to support the movement to provide government regulation of the manufacture and sale of motor fuel.

In making this recommendation, the Public Utilities Committee adopted the view of Councilman Conwell that if the State should attempt to regulate the price of gasoline, it would be a violation of the state constitution to do so.

Mr. Hartenbauer, formerly Mayor of Des Moines, made his will, he declared his estate was community property, and under the laws of California his wife, Mrs. Cynthia J. Hartenbauer, was entitled to one-half.

The other half of the estate he divided among his brothers, sisters, nephews and nieces, giving to each a one-tenth part. One of the nephews was Do Witt Fowles, who filed a petition for partial distribution.

He alleged that the entire estate was separate property. If distributed on this basis, Mrs. Hartenbauer's relatives would receive a larger proportion, and Mrs. Hartenbauer's share would come out of the residue and would therefore be smaller.

Mr. Hartenbauer opposed distribution for partial distribution.

Additional help was granted for the Municipal Employment Bureau by the City Council yesterday through the approval of a request for one male clerk at $75 a month, one woman clerk at $60 a month and telephone operator at $65 a month.

Plans for a new city pound were received by the Council from the Humane Animal Commission yesterday and referred to the Finance Committee. The proposal of the commission is that the city agree to a ten-years' lease on new quarters at the present rental paid for inadequate quarters.

Protest against the drinking fountain at Pasadena Avenue and Yerba Buena Street was filed with the Council yesterday by the Garvanza Improvement Association. The Council will seek another location for the fountain.

Frederick Maskev, chief deputy quarantiner for the State, said yesterday:

"The biology of the insect has not been worked out, rather it has been observed in English so far as I am aware. What little is known about the larval stage is that the same prefers wet soils and probably feeds upon the tissues of the roots of plants found growing in such locations.

Though there are large numbers of beetles in the Hawaiian Islands, where the insect has found lodgment and has done immense damages, it has never been found here, either in the larval or mature state."

Col. Holabird prefaced his address with the statement that he is a business man and not an orator, and he hoped to say something that would lead his hearers to give sober and careful thought to the situation.

FOR CIRCULATION.
Don't let the joy of your automobile keep you from an occasional hike. Half of your aches and a good many of your disappointments in personal affairs and in business come from a lack of the right amount of exercise. You can't see things in the light unless the blood gets into the brain.

WHAT SAY?
A force of Villistas at Durango under the command of Gen. Cornechos, surrendered to the Carranza commander and were granted amnesty.

It was understood, but not expressed, that during the period of amnesty they would not assail Carrancista forces, but would limit their activities to robbing and murdering unarmed gringos, eh?

NEBRASKA WAKES UP.
Ungrateful Nebraska has tumbled Billy Bryan into the discard as candidate for delegate-at-large to the Democratic National Convention. The Democrats of Nebraska have in times gone stood nobly by the Boy Orator of the Platte. Even his retirement from the Wilson Cabinet did not quell him. But when the warrior who led a regiment in the Spanish War (against Chicago embalmed beef) announced himself as a hyphenated anti-American, the fighting blood of the Nebraska Democracy rebelled and Billy was relegated to a sixth place on the ballot.

IN DRY SEATTLE.
When Billingsley's auto in Seattle crashed into another machine a vigilant and kind-hearted policeman rushed to his rescue. He was rejoiced to find that Billingsley was unhurt, but he also found a use for the police ambulance that had been summoned, for Billingsley had two sacks of beer in his auto, and instead of being taken to the hospital he was escorted to the police station and in due course fined and imprisoned for transporting liquid damnation through the public streets. In vain did he plead that the beer was intended to clean window panes. The magistrate decreed that it was intended to alleviate stomach pains.

TOO GERMAN FOR 'EM.
What's in a name? The citizens of Berlin want the name of the place changed. This is not the original Berlin but a city of that name in the province of Ontario, Canada. A bill was recently introduced in the Ontario Legislature with the object of giving effect to the wishes of the citizens, but the Private Bills Committee threw it out. Mass meetings, strong protests and all the rest followed, and now a personal appeal has been made to the Premier of Ontario to see that the city is given a name "more in keeping with British sentiment." There are six Berlins in America. If Germany forces the United States to sever diplomatic relations with it will they all want to change their names? Not much. They wouldn't be so silly.

CENSORED LETTERS.
Los Angeles people who have correspondents in Canada complain that the Dominion authorities are opening their mail and reading it. That may be unpleasing; but after all, the letter writers and receivers are not the only ones who don't enjoy it. The censors themselves are not enamored of their jobs. The majority of letters written nowadays, including the "dictated but not read," are not of a kind to make censors glad of the privilege to peruse them. However, they have this much to be thankful for—the "art of letter-writing" is numbered among the lost. Much as literary ladies may deplore its disappearance, the censor who has to spend his days with masses of correspondence must rejoice that he is spared.

BUDS, SOCIETY AND OTHERWISE.
At Eastertime society buds and the buds of California's wondrous flower gardens all are at their best. Marvelous is the display of both at this season of the year. Few tilings in the world are more fascinating than the Los Angeles Broadway beauty show in late April. In some respects it may be called delightfully daring. At any rate, no man exists who is insensible to its charms. And no woman exists to whom there is not an irresistible appeal in the matchless flower shows which are a spring feature in this district. Pasadena and Glendale have held theirs, and have maintained the great reputation won in past seasons. Next on the programme will be the Sierra Madre flower festival. It certainly is good to be alive and in California.

FOUND AT LAST!
The railroad guard on the Union Pacific limited who threw up his hands when he felt the impact of the revolver muzzle against his abdomen, and instead of resisting the robber assisted him to separate forty-three passengers from their valuables, will probably lose his job as a guard. But he may apply for the prize offered by the London Poetic Society for a verse that shall rhyme with month. Thus:
"He seized me on the railway,
April was the month,
I saw my pistols thrown away
And also was my gun th—
Down away!"

The railroad did better in Colorado. There with a posse of only 1000 men, they captured two bandits who had robbed the crew of a freight train.

SHELL CALIFORNIA BE AN OUTCAST

Government under universal suffrage is essentially party government. Two years ago forces in this State unfriendly to Republican rule sought to wipe the party itself out of existence. Deterred by a disastrous defeat from further attempts at party destruction, they are now approaching like the Greeks bearing gifts, for an attack on the leadership of the party. They have rolled forward a wooden horse in the form of the hyphenated United-Republican ticket and they aver that if we accept it we shall find it filled with thousands of former Progressive voters now converted to Republicanism and clad in Republican uniforms who will help us to drive the forces of Democracy from the national Capitol. They assert that their only object is the most perfect union and harmony of all forces; that they seek to play the role of peacemaker and then retire.

But inquisitive eyes have already peered into the depths of that Greek gift; they say that the armor of the warriors enclosed was never wrought at a Republican forge; that the mottoes on the banners are not the tenets of the Republican faith and that their appearance in a Republican citadel will lead to strife and destruction.

To the warning note of the stalwart Republican press the invaders raise the cry which greeted Cassandra before Troy. "False, false, false. Don't believe a word of it!" The credulity of those mythical Trojans and its direful consequences has been perpetuated in song and story. Homer used it as a symbol and as a warning to the early Greek republics. The lesson has not lost its usefulness. History does not repeat itself, but republics are prone to run in parallel courses because the great stream of human thought follows the same channel through the ages.

But in the present instance we have an opportunity to look about us and observe what has been done by the Republican party in other States, to consider how these Greek envoys have been received elsewhere. New York, Wisconsin, Illinois and Massachusetts have acted. They listened to protestations of Progressive friendliness, but in every instance they have rejected the suggestion that former Progressive leaders be placed on the State's delegation to the National Republican Convention. If the hyphenated United-Republican ticket should win in the May primaries California would be the outcast in the National Republican Convention, the only State sending a Progressive delegation.

Have we so few industries to guard, so few interests at stake, that we can afford to thus flaunt our inconstancy and waywardness in the faces of the Republican legions of the nation?

A SYSTEM OF MILITARY PREPAREDNESS.

Maj.-Gen. Emory Upton, who commanded a division of cavalry during the Civil War, left upon his death, in 1881, an unpublished manuscript bearing upon our military history and military policy. Hon. Elihu Root, then Secretary of War, rescued this work from oblivion and ordered it published at the Government Printing Office under the title of "The Military Policy of the United States," on the ground that it ought to be made available for the study of the officers and for information of Congress and others who may be charged with shaping our military policy in the future.

This was twelve years ago. The pamphlet containing Gen. Upton's plan has slept in the archives of the War Department until now, when Gen. H. L. Scott, acting as Secretary of War ad interim, has caused extracts from it to be made as bearing upon the present problem of national preparedness, and these, at the instance of Senator McCumber, have been published in a late number of the Congressional Records under the title of "Lessons from the Revolution." They are as follows:

"That in proportion as the general government gives the States authority to arm and equip troops it lessens the military strength of the whole people and correspondingly increases the national expenditures."

"That when a nation attempts to combat disciplined troops with raw levies it must maintain an army of at least twice the size of that of the enemy, and even then have no guarantee of success."

"That neither voluntary enlistments based on patriotism nor the bounty can be relied upon to supply men for the army during a prolonged war."

"That the draft, connected or not connected with voluntary enlistments and bounties, is the only sure reliance of a government in time of war."

"That short enlistments at the beginning of a war tend to disgust men with the service and force the government to do more with less."

"That regular troops engaged for the war are the safe reliance of a government, and are in every point of view the best and most economical."

"That when a nation at war relies upon a system of regulars and volunteers, or regulars and militia, the men, in the absence of compulsion or very strong inducements, will invariably enlist in the organizations most lax in discipline."

"That troops become reliable only in proportion as they are disciplined; that discipline is the fruit of long training and cannot be attained without the existence of a good corps of officers."

"That the insufficiency of numbers to counterbalance a lack of discipline should convince us that our true policy, both in peace and war, as Washington put it, 'ought to be to have a good army rather than a large one.'"

The military record of the United States is clear of defeats, but upon it are many of the other humiliations attending a lack of foresight and preparedness. Only the sturdy resilience of brave-hearted and tough-muscled forefathers enabled the colonies to become a republic and won an honorable peace in 1812; only the weakness of the Mexicans and the Spaniards permitted speedy victories in the two remaining foreign wars. In the Civil War the Union was pitted against brave men who suffered from many of the weaknesses, including also the fatal one of lesser numbers, of the Union. Had the Union been prepared there might have been an insurrection, but there would have been no rebellion. Preparedness was lacking, so the bloody contest dragged on Looking Toward the Sunrise.

THE COLONEL ROOSEVELT CANDIDACY.

A Calm Presentation of Its Folly by a Big Republican Newspaper.

[Washington Star:] The Republican party in national convention should nominate a Republican for President. To go outside for a candidate would be a confession of bankruptcy. If the party is so reduced in character and ability that it has no member equal to leadership at this time it should surrender its name and go out of business. The proposition is as plain as a now, as everybody knows, and as he himself admits, Mr. Roosevelt is not a Republican. He left the party four years ago and, as a bolter, defeated it. More than that. He denounced the party as unworthy of longer trust, and many of the men with whom he had while a Republican been on terms of closest personal and political accord as corrupt bosses.

There has been no change in the party since. It stands today, as then, for a protective tariff, a sound monetary system, an adequate national defense, a continuation of American control in the Philippines, and other policies with which its name has long been associated.

The men Mr. Roosevelt then denounced are, with one exception, influential in the party now as then.

Mr. Barnes has lost a good deal, though not all of the power he has exercised. But the others, whether in office or out, are not only in good standing as Republicans, but are numbered among those upon whom the party is relying for success this year.

How, then, would it be possible for the Republicans to nominate Mr. Roosevelt for President without stultifying themselves? How could they escape the reproach of pusillanimity? In politics one must of course forgive and forget much. But, whether in politics or out, forgiveness must be sought. An injured person rarely goes on a frantic search for the injurer with for-giveness on a silver salver ready for offering.

Is Mr. Roosevelt asking forgiveness? Has he retracted any word of it? Is not every word of it quotable against him now? And would not every word be quoted with effect by the Democrats as soon as the campaign opened, and be "kept standing" while the campaign last?

Mr. Roosevelt thinks he is the only man in the country who can beat Mr. Wilson; and his campaign for the Republican nomination is based on that belief. Those who are boozing him agree with him, and his nomination would concede the point. That the Democrats would welcome such a campaign is known of all who have made an examination of the situation and are competent to pass upon the information acquired. They could ask nothing better at a time when they are greatly perturbed.

And this is the end of it all! Of my waiting and my pain—

On a little funeral pall, And empty arms again.

How shall I know my own, Where the air is white with wings;

My baby, so soon from my bosom flown,

To the angels' musterings?

We may never see the same flesh that was swallowed up in the grave—not likely. It has fed itself away in a damp and narrow grave is a thought intolerable. We forget that a peaceful slumber takes no cognizance of the flying years. The devout soul knows that—

Beyond the flight of time,

Beyond the reign of death,

There surely is some blessed clime—

Where life is not a breath—

Nor life's afflictions, transient fire,

Whose sparks fly upward and expire.

THE THRESHOLD OF HOPE.

By J. Marvin Nichols.

Another Easter has dawned!

Another universal call has come from human hearts. We meet on common ground today.

Around their voiceless dead gather pagan and Christian alike. Each feels out into the dim unknown if happily he may touch the latchstring of the gateway beyond which roams the spirits of their disembodied dead.

Easter Morning! Now one who sees it stamps its image as the other flies! It is not a question of the Christ religion, only as that belief enlarges the common, inborn sense that somewhere, somehow we shall meet again.

Here the heathen builds his altar and burns incense in the hope of the land where he shall meet his dead again. Here the Indian stops to catch a foregleam of his confederate's happy hunting ground.

Here the pagan dreams of the immortals. Here the Christian reverently kneels beside a flower-strewed grave and sees through tears the land where the immortal spirits stray.

Easter! The holy day! The Sabbath of all our Sabbaths. The Sabbath when a world halts at the tomb whose seal was broken and whose sleeping dust came forth to light and life. The day when the universal heart receives afresh the pledges of its intense longing—the resurrection of the dead.

In the light of this Easter Day, and after all, death is but a "sleep." What a beautiful figure! The hour of slumber when all our wasted

Do not know that body resurrection life immortal, knowing this fact yesterday did not give me just one hour of rest. I found that an attempt was made to use the same. He found a simple and had been denied that there was change to justify him in this. Ambition.
TALENT GROWS IN DARKNESS.

Blind Harpist Now Mastering Modern Languages.

Creator of Sweet-toned "Harp of One String."

Distinguished Men, Women His Friends.

The ever-active mind of Rosendo Uruchurtu, blind Mexican musician, inventor of a melodious harp of one string, and the friend of many noted Californians, has entered a new field of endeavor to break the monotony of permanent darkness. After mastering the art and the science of music so that he could play almost all known musical instruments, he has taken up the study of languages. He has now learned his harp on a "written-down train," and his latest bid, but devotes several hours of every day and evening to his task of becoming an accomplished linguist. Many years ago he became a fluent speaker of English, and has long associated with such artists and artists in the home of Charles P. Lummi and other distinguished men of California made him a pleasing conversationalist. His native tongue he has long understood and eloquently. In the last year he has mastered the languages of Italian, German, and French, and at the present time has taken up the study of the Russian language. He expects to add Japanese and the more difficult tongues of the Orient to his repertoire.

Mr. Uruchurtu, who is now 45 years old, has lived in Los Angeles since he was 1 year of age, having been brought here by his parents from the City of Mexico. He received his education in the public schools and private colleges of Los Angeles and in eastern institutions of learning.

ROSENDOLIN HIS INVENTION.

The lyric device, consisting of one steel string stretched across a sounding board about twice the size of that of a guitar, was given the poetic name of "the harp of one string" by Mr. Uruchurtu, who for years has been a devoted patron of the talented blind musician. The "rosendolin" is the popular name by which the instrument is known among the player's many friends and acquaintances in Los Angeles.

For many years Mr. Uruchurtu has been a frequent visitor at El Alisal, the noted Arroyo Seco home of Dr. Eva R. Hensius, where the musician has played on the rosendolin for John Muir, the Jack Londons, Ernest Thompson Seton, David Starr Jordan, and many other distinguished persons. In the Arroyo Seco, "the land of the Uruchurtus," there is another patron in Dr. Eva R. Hensius, a native daughter of California and former grand president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Henry E. Huntington, the capitalist, took an interest in the affairs of the blind Uruchurtu and assisted him in his efforts to obtain a patent for his unique invention. The petition, however, was denied in Washington, on the grounds that the application was not made until several years after the instrument had been invented.

DISCOVERED BY ACCIDENT.

The single steel string of the rosendolin is stretched across the full length of the sounding board and is raised at either end on bridges. The harpist picks the string with a bit of steel in the right hand, using a thick piece of glass two inches long. In the other hand, to manipulate the changes in tone. On the dainty harp the sad-faced Uruchurtu plays with plaintive charm "La Paloma," "La Golondrina," and the other Spanish favorites.

"The string carries the air like the human voice," explained the musician-inventor. "It is its resemblance in tone to the music of the human vocal chords that gives the harp its appealing melody.

"I discovered the rosendolin by accident. One day I dropped a small piece of glass on the strings of my guitar. I was startled by the clear and exquisitely sweet tone produced.

I began experiments and shortly was playing a tune on one string. I tried sounding boards of different sizes and various kinds of strings before I discovered the proper combination.

"For some reason unknown to me the glass improves the tones. I have used various substances, but glass brings out the melody best of all."

Most of the artists, writers and bohemians of Los Angeles know Uruchurtu and have heard the rosendolin. His favorite downtown haunt is Spanish restaurant on Ninth Broadway near First street. He lives at No. 1232 East Ninth street.

RANCH'S BIG RETURNS.

Oakley Company's Operations Near Brawley Attract Notice.

Imperial Valley has one ranch, that of the Oakley Company, located near Brawley, which it is estimated will bring in gross returns to exceed $150,000. J. W. Oakley of this city has just returned from the valley, where he has been inspecting the ranch operations.

The Oakley Company's ranch comprises 14,000 acres adjoining the towns of Brawley and Westmoore. Barley cutting has been finished and the yield will average 150 bushels per acre, twenty-five sacks per acre. This cutting, from two to three weeks earlier than in other years, and this is due to the fact that it was planted early and not pastured later than January.

Hay making is also well along on this great ranch, four movers being run constantly. From three to four carloads of hay are shipped to market. Five hundred acres of land has been thoroughly plowed and is ready for corn, which will be planted about the middle of May, and this should be harvested in October. There are 275 acres of cantaloupe on this ranch, the marketing of which will begin about the middle of May and continue until the first of July. Mr. Oakley estimates that the gross revenue from this ranch this year will be in excess of $150,000.

BLACK FACES TO SHINE.

Minstrel Show to be Given by West Hollywood Men's Club First Week in May Will Present Much High Class Talent, Both Amateur and Professionals.

Hollywood is to have an old-fashioned, rollicking minstrel show, given by the Men's Club of West Hollywood on the nights of May 5 and 6 in Wilcox Auditorium. The programmes will present high-class talent, both amateur and professionals.

Bryon Gay, the Los Angeles composer and song-writer, who has credit such songs as "The Little Ford Rambled Right Along," "Gasoline Gus and His Jitney Bus," "The Dragon's Eye," etc., is to take part. One of the features will be the presentation of his new song, "My Sweet Dream and You," which has been written especially for the actors' fund of America. This song is to be sung by Harold Melville, Hollywood's lyric tenor.

In addition to directing rehearsals, Mr. Gay will be one of the end men, and opposite him will be Ralph McLean. Other stars to be well-known Hollywood boys, Clarence McKee and Joe Jackson, and Jacques Sendorf will be interlocutor.

Tickets for this event are on sale at the Crescent Hardware Store, No. 6745 Hollywood boulevard.

URGES ADVANCE IN AIRCRAFT.

Motor Expert from War Front Preaches Preparedness.

Says Battle Machine Men Must Highly Specialize.

Declares Europe Seven Years Ahead in Aeroplanes.

An interesting visitor in Los Angeles is William R. McCulla, aircraft motor engineer, who recently returned from "the front" in Mexico, whither he went at the behest of the Packard Motor Car Company, which concern offered his services to the government to aid in problems of mechanical transportation.

Mr. McCulla has had many varied experiences crowded into the past year in the service of the British and French governments, with startling experiences with the aircraft armament battles at the front; then back to America and down in Mexico with the troops.

He has just come up from North Island, San Diego, where he went to study government aircraft conditions and while there he addressed officers and men of the Signal Corps aviation school at North Island.

PEACE FOR ADVANCE.

Special research on aircraft motors has been Mr. McCulla's aim in all his wide experiences of the past twelve months. He declares that the aircraft will undoubtedly be the future main production of the war lines, and that the lack of development on this line in the United States service is so striking that strong means should be employed to lay the contrast between this country and England. He has joined the Naval Advisory Board, with pines that steps be taken to secure large appropriations to advance this line of defense. Mr. McCulla will leave for the East tomorrow, and is probably the man who will take the next step to be taken to rear the naval board with a statement of his expert observations.

"American military men interested in aircraft have had the idea," said Mr. McCulla yesterday, "that their work was sprung in an important way when compared with the world's advancement, but one can see more aircraft in England and France in one day than in years here. They are built so rapidly that we are able to developments on this line."

"England is making rapid strides towards a general adoption of the all-metal machines. Here we use wood and bone. England has much a number of aircraft that would be impossible to house them, and they must be withstand the climatic conditions. The heavier types are being made more and more. In Europe today there are built three to four carloads of aircraft, which are shipped to market. Five hundred acres of land has been thoroughly plowed and is ready for corn, which will be planted about the middle of May, and this should be harvested in October. There are 275 acres of cantaloupe on this ranch, the marketing of which will begin about the middle of May and continue until the first of July. Mr. Oakley estimates that the gross revenue from this ranch this year will be in excess of $150,000.

MUSICALIZING.

"Here in America the officers have been given simply a smattering of various branches. In Europe the 'pilot' is but a cog in the machine. The observer is the most important officer in the crew. He must take observations at high altitude, make a map, determine where are suitable places for trenches, where points of attack are most available, make reckonings of distance, altitude, etc., and be able to read messages on the radio. All of these which are constantly being changed.

"Demand for these observers is so great that long since the first trained officers were all used. There are now schools that take the most promising students and by process of elimination weed it out until men capable of high development in these lines are obtained. America must come to this, and it must use machine vastly superior to those now in use.

"The reason that there has not been greater advancement in America is that the government has held its appropriations down to a point where the manufacturers have not been able to develop to the point where new and inexpensive equipments which would be required to turn out such craft as those now in use."

Mr. McCulla's service on the battle lines of England and France covered ten months.

Dave Montezum, better known along the border as "The Kid," who has pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiring to smuggle opium, and who it is alleged was with Villa forces at the attack on Columbus, N. M., takes exception to the allegation. He has placed in the hands of Asst. Dist.-Atty. O'Connor a statement covering his actions when the Leffingwell crowd was taken into custody, and claims that he was never nearer Columbus than Junes. It is understood that the statement is satisfactory and that the boy will be sentenced under the smuggling charge tomorrow morning in Judge Trippet's court.

WHO OWNS DOG?
QUESTION IN COURT.

FAMILIES CONTEND FOR BLUE-RIBBON WOLF HOUND.

Tact of Solomon Called for to Decide Whether Mrs. Smith Gave Russian Aristocrat to Miss Cole or Merely Lent Her, with Conditions Stated.

The ownership of Sorva, a Russian wolf hound, who has taken blue ribbons and first prizes at numerous dog shows, furnishes an interesting legal nut for Judge Wellborn to crack. Incidentally, this hound has made public the pathetic details of the burial of one of Sorva's blue-blooded pups, a ceremony that took place at fashionable Brentwood Park, where tears mingled and where, while the remains of the puppy laid in state, the mourners ate ice cream.

Miss Marjorie Cole, daughter of W. H. Cole, artist and mining broker, and her mother, an guardian, brought suit against Mrs. Alfred Smith, the wife of a retired lieutenant of police of Chicago, for possession of the dog. Cole does not own the hound. Her love for the hound delighted Mrs. Smith, who also is a lover of wolf hounds, and an authority. The Smiths and the Coles became acquainted when the former rented a house from the Coles on the latter's Brentwood Park property.

Miss Cole claims she bought a son of Sorva's. Dinsmeyer removed the promising canine from this unhappy home, and Miss Cole was inconsolable. Mrs. Smith joined Miss Cole and her friends in the puppy's obsequies. When the blue-blooded puppy died, Miss Cole says, Mrs. Smith offered Sorva. It was a gift.

To make the transaction binding, the Coles testified, they gave Mrs. Smith a silver-mounted buffalo nickel. Sorva therefore was identified with Miss Cole. But her boy was not to continue. One day Mrs. Smith drove up in an automobile to Sorva's kennel, and drove away with the dog.

Mrs. Smith emphatically denied that she had ever given Sorva away. She would not say how much money she sold her Sorva. Sorva was a profitable source of revenue. Her pups brought from $200 to $300 each. She said when she left the Brentwood Park house, she loaned Sorva to Miss Marjorie.

The terms of the loan were that she should not let her customer's dog go except to be returned to the Smiths that she should continue to be registered under the ownership of Mrs. Smith, and that half of the litter of puppies should be given to the latter. The terms were violated. Mrs. Smith admitted one day when she went to call on the Coles, Sorva jumped into her automobile and went home with her.

Judge Wellborn continued the case until Wednesday.

PREPARED MEETINGS.

In preparation for the series of evangelistic meetings that are to be held in the big tabernacle at Eleventh and Hope streets by Evangelists Brown and Curr, a series of preliminary meetings for the young people will be held in Trinity Auditorium, commencing tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock.

All young people's societies of the city are invited to take part in the meetings. Young people and the meetings will continue through the entire week, closing with a great rally next Sunday in the First Methodist Episcopal Church. H. PLAN ACTIVE WORK
AGAINST CHARTER

ADVANCEMENT LEAGUE MEMBERS WILL CANVASS CITY.

Organizations in All Precincts to Take up Task and House-to-house Campaign will be Fought by Corps of Volunteers—Plans are Prepared.

Approval of plans for active work against the proposed charter was given at the monthly luncheon of the Los Angeles Improvement League yesterday afternoon at the United States Hotel. A house-to-house canvass is planned.

A spirited campaign in favor of the charter is in full swing. The league is in favor of the alternative proposal 253, which alternative provides for election of Councilmen by districts.

The league is organized in six districts, each district having a manager. A number of volunteers will carry on the house-to-house campaign. By these means it is hoped to arouse the majority of the voters against the proposed charter.

The league feels that the proposed charter contains sections inimical to government and will contain wage and hour laws, which wages will be fought against it.

Meetings of the league will be held every second Saturday of the month. The next meeting will be at Christopher's first floor.

Mr. W. A. C. Clegg, who is setting forth the views of the league and containing arguments against the proposed charter has been prepared and will be circulated among the voters.

SE PETALS

rose petals have a food value. Three varieties of the roses were brought to market, made of the petals of Mrs. Hendren, the other of Bagged Rose petals. From forty to fifty roses are required for each glass, and no jelly is used. The idea suggested to Mrs. Schaefer was to use rose petals, rose hips, and other to which the petals are put.

No artificial coloring is used. The process, which is a dark shade. Neither is any patent formula required. The entire process is Southern California, as the ingredient is home grown, home made and home eaten.

Mrs. Schaefer does not know that rose petal jelly will come into general use where there are no roses available. She is not prepared to venture any claims as to the commercial value of her discovery of how to make the new delicacy.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

PROPOSE BRANCH FARM TO TEACH POULTRYMEN.

with a six-star to that now maintained at Davis in poultry business by the State University.

Southern California now raises only about one-third of the eggs and poultry that it consumes. The lack of knowledge in the poultry business has been found to be due chiefly to the lack of definite knowledge on the part of the ranchers. With an experimental farm and a course of instruction, it is believed the production can be increased largely and foundational information can be furnished a large number who are eager to engage in the business.

The farm at Davis is too remote for its location to be of much practical value. Large and immediate benefits, it is estimated, would follow the establishment of a branch farm in Los Angeles county.

TRACING POISON.

Deputy Sheriff Finds Where Lysol Given Little Marjorie Guerin Was Purchased and Will Attempt to Clear Mystery by Finding Purchaser.

Where did 2-year-old Marjorie Guerin of No. 1241 Fielding street, Hollywood, get the lysol which caused her death on Friday?

Her parents deny having had any of the drug about the house, and accuse Edna Barnes, a negro, and former nurse of the child, of having given the poison.

In the County Jail, where the woman was taken yesterday morning, after a night in the city jail, the negro denied all knowledge of the poisoning, or where the lysol came from. She insisted that she had bought none and also that she had no animosity toward Mr. and Mrs. Paul Guerin for having discharged her.

Deputy Sheriff Nolan is of the opinion that the prisoner is mentally unbalanced. Deputy Nolan has succeeded in tracing the lysol to its original owner, J. T. Armstrong, proprietor of a pharmacy on Figueroa street. Its serial number indicates that it was sold in January, and every effort will be made to have Mr. Armstrong identify the purchaser.

ENGINEER REPORTS PLANS TO HOLD RIVER IN CHECK.

County and Southern Counties Associations will Work in Harmony to Same End, Supervisor Woodley Informs Called to Discuss Local Work.

The meeting of the Los Angeles County Flood Control Association, which was called yesterday morning for the purpose of hearing a report on the amount of work done by Flood Control Engineer Reagan to the present time, came near splitting over the merits of the Southern Counties Flood Control Association.

The French raid was made early in September, on a day when Fraulein Moser was away on leave of absence from the hospital.

"It was about 8 o'clock in the morning," she said. "We heard the church bells ringing and the factory whistles blowing and knew that was the signal that an air raid from the air was imminent. Everybody who could go rushed for the cellar. I didn't—I wanted to see what was going on."

"I went out on the veranda of the house and looking up I had a perfect view of the six great aircraft as they whirled over the city. There were large iron crosses on the bottoms of the machines, and at first we, of course, took them to belong to the Germans. But when they got safely over the city they dropped the bombs."

SIGHT FASCINATES.

"The sun was shining brightly and the effect of the explosions was really beautiful. I watched with the greatest interest and forgot to be afraid. As soon as I could run out into the street and picked up some of the fragments before they were cold. The neighbors called me a fool, but it was an experience worth while. Then came the time to give aid to the wounded, and you can be sure that with others, had a busy time."

"I am glad to say that the French, presented there was a demand for training nurses, and Fraulein Moser was one of the first to offer her services to the Red Cross."

For three years her home was in the Orient.

Visual education in the country schools will cost the county a minimum of $6165 and a maximum of $10,165 per year, according to a carefully-prepared report of the Superintendent of Schools. Within four months, according to Alfred L. Ries, general manager of the Chinese-American Exchange Company, who has been here. The project, which is now in its second year of operation, includes a number of considerable magnificence, according to Mr. Ries, and is to be established in the Orient.

In his report, Mr. Keppler, who is about 112,000 grammar-grade children and 25,000 high school students, residing in districts outside the six communities in the country which have their own superintendents, will be benefited by the department.

WHAT IS NEEDED? The visual director of education is to be supplied with films, one projection apparatus, a hall in which films can be screened properly arranged for screening reproduction, other paraphernalia and several assistants. A budget of $1000 has already been allowed the Department of Education for the ginning of this work.

If it is conducted on the most possible scale with the curtains of all possible expenses it is estimated to cost approximately $5165 a month. The larger number of films are other suggestions for improvement of the proposed work are now being considered.

According to the suggestion of Mr. Keppler, everything is now ready to proceed with the work, soon as the board gives its final approval, which is expected on Tuesday, when no action will be taken.

IN THE CITY.

In promoting its campaign, establishing motion pictures is one of the high school and normal school State, the Committee on Education and Vocational Play and Employment, with the City Council, yesterday, voted an appropriation of $50 to be used in furthering the movement.

The plan of the committee is to have a series of meetings at different times and it was recommended that by a systematic campaign the present conditions among the youth of the city may be improved by providing more opportunities for the youth to associate with the various grounds and schools of the city.

It is pointed out in the letter to the Mayor and Council filed yesterday that other States have done much to great advantage. Armond David, chairman of the committee, asks an opportunity to present more complete data to the Council Finance Committee.

It Cures Through the Pores

New Pore Treatment Takes Place of Pain Tablets and Internal Medicines.

In the Relief of All Kinds of Aches and Pains and is a Most Wonderful Treatment for Pleurisy and Nasal Catarrh.

THE new treatment relieves aches and soreness wherever applied. Pleurisy, neuralgia and rheumatism are all simultaneously benefited and relieved by simply applying it over the affected parts and over the bottoms of the feet. Old-fashioned porous plasters are of little value in the relief of deep-seated pain. They seal the pores, directly opposing the result they seek to accomplish. The bodily poisons must be eliminated before a lasting cure is possible. Free pore action is just as essential to good health as free blood action.

What They Say:
"Had rheumatism in knees and shoulder. Your pore treatment stopped it in a few days. I think it is wonderful."

Los Angeles Sunday Times.

BY DOROTHY B. JOHNSTON.

PRESIDENTS, delegates and visitors from Los Angeles district to the fifteenth annual convention of the California Federation of Women's Clubs to be held at Del Monte from Tuesday until Sunday, inclusive, are leaving this city tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

A round-trip rate of $11.40 has been arranged now on sale at No. 622 South Spring street. The south will not have as large a representation this year as the north, Del Monte being far more accessible to other districts. Next year, however, the State meeting will undoubtedly be held nearer us.

The pageant to be staged on the beautiful Del Monte grounds Thursday afternoon, under supervision of Dr. Adrienne Reinhardt of Berkeley, chairman of literature, will be the most stupendous attempt of the clubwomen, to follow by dinner and an Elizabethan evening as arranged in these columns last Sunday. The Down Out Club is to have its annual dinner that evening, and Mrs. Russell J. Waters, the president, is going up especially to preside.

The selection will be held Friday morning. It will hardly be exciting this year, for Mrs. Edward Dexter Knight's complimentary election is assured.

Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock a drive under the guidance of Mrs. Rollin B. Lane Monday afternoon, the aim being to make this section one of the best and to increase the membership to at least fifty. Mr. McBurney, the artist, gave a talk on "English and Modern Art," illustrated with pictures. Dr. Edwards, the "unconquered teacher," was also present and gave a talk. Refreshments were served and it was decided to have one meeting each month in a private home, during the afternoon to study and a social hour.

The music section had several visits from the Glendale club on Tuesday. Mrs. Seward Cole gave a talk on "The Story of Music," and Mrs. Charles C. Arnold, chairman, was enjoyed, and the roads around Monterey abound in scenic beauty.

Unique in the annals of clubdom is the section of the programme entitled "Looking Backward," when all the past presidents are to give reminiscences. Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, the State federation president, '02; Mrs. Kate Buckley, '03; Mrs. L. F. Darling, '04; Mrs. George Law Smith, '05; Mrs. Josiah Evans, '06; Mrs. Robert Hill, '07; Mrs. Edwin P. Bunn, '08; Mrs. James H. Hume, '09-'10; Mrs. Russell Judson Waters, '11-'12; Mrs. James W. Orr, '13-'14; Mrs. Lillian Gray Palmer, '15. This is aptly titled "Looking Backward," responded by Mrs. Walter Longbottom, who will sing a group of Carlos Troyer's Indian songs, and the addresses of welcome by Mrs. W. C. Brown, chairman of the local board of Pacific Grove, and Mrs. James M. Stow, Mayor of Pacific Grove, responded by Mrs. Knight.

Conferences to be held are:

Wednesday morning, 8 o'clock; "Industrial and Social Conditions and Education Department"; Mrs. Frank A. Gibson, Mrs. R. J. Sterrett; "Parliamentary Usage"; Mrs. Annie Little, Barry.

Thursday morning, 8 o'clock; "Legislation"; Mrs. W. E. Colby; "Art"; Mrs. Rose V. Berry.

Friday morning, 8 o'clock; "Literature"; Mrs. Reinhardt.

The subject on public welfare is intended for discussion on the programme with its social features and music a-plenty.

An election time draw near in all the Los Angeles clubs, and interest at a white heat—and in some cases temper. Where there are two candidates for the presidency, the women are rallying to their favorite with all strength. But women are steadfastly broadening for this year, never letting themselves be urged on merit, and not at the expense of "downing" their rival for office. "Say all the good things you can for me, but not a word against her," has been the motto of the year. The few weeks by some of the right sort of club women who are apt to win out.

Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, whose name will be put before the General Federation of Women's Clubs at the New York biennial next month, is putting before the California club women a wonderful example in fairness and justice in the method of "winning" for office she has adopted.

Whether the woman of California comes to California and her or another woman, loyalty will be the keynote.

Her dedicated campaign has opened the eyes of all women to the possibility of winning without adopting "win-pulling" policies.

Her womanliness and gentility are telling qualities and glorify the woman movement. For she will never bring criticism to the cause.

Mrs. Frank Garrett, candidate for the presidency of the Woman's City Club, is making a strong showing without resorting to campaign methods.

She, in fact, refuses to play politics, and her friends are pleased mightily at her conduct.

Mr. Davis believes that in the splendid programmes of this year which she has provided with the accord of that wonderful executive, Mrs. E. R. Brainerd, who emanates cordiality and the right sort of encouragement to the members of her executive board and club, do not speak of her efficiency and fitness for the office of president, nothing will. "By your works you shall know them," is the principle.

As president of the local board of the International Musical Convention, held in Los Angeles last summer, when Mrs. Garrett had sixteen chairmen of committees, each with a large working force under him, making a small army of people, proof of her executive ability was shown.

Not many club women have had the chance to successfully carry on a national movement.

She has served on the board of the City Club two years and was president of the Friday Morning Club for five years, which denotes business acumen.

Mrs. Garrett believes in a square deal, and will carry out the present policy of the club, if elected, in keeping it free from any political or religious influence. For it would be fatal otherwise in any organization.

It is necessary the safety valve in an organization whose membership is composed of radicals and conservatives of every belief and ism.

Mrs. M. E. Johnson will have no opposition to the presidency of the Wednesday Morning Club. She was chairman of programme this year.

Miss Rose Ellerbe is slated to lead the Woman's Press Club.

PATRIOT'S LESSONS LEARNED AT EMBRYO SOLDIERS' CAMP.

Hundred Husky High School Cadets Gather Coats of Tan and Rudiments of Manly Martial Training in the Great Outdoors.

BY R. W. MCQUISTON.

REPRESENTING their fathers by several months, 100 boy students of Los Angeles High have been in military encampment at Azusa during the past week. There were two companies of these active members of the school cadets. They enjoyed their spring vacation under regular military discipline and instruction. For six days they studied the life of a soldier, making maps, eating at a "mess," maneuvering, doing guard duty and attending lectures on military art, which included observation work at the recent San Francisco exposition. Both foreign and domestic programs were presented by the Rosencrantz Club, on Wednesday, under direction of Mrs. Sayers. Miss Marie Clegg delighted her hearers with a home on art, which included observations on war at the recent San Francisco exposition. Both foreign

Showing how health
makes style and style makes health
—in Nature's way

To obey Nature is to involve defeat. To follow the ways of Nature promises victory.

The Nemo Wonderlift
Bandlet gives perfect support because it works in Nature's way.

Let us explain how:
The abdominal walls are the chief support of the abdominal organs. When healthy and tense, they do their appointed work.
When weakened, by weight of excess fat, or otherwise, they fail to perform their duty.

DIAGRAM

Showing the Wonderlift Bandlet before and after adjustment, and the smooth, stylish lines of the corset.

Like the abdominal muscles, the Wonderlift Bandlet is elastic but firm; when tense (laced up) it lifts the abdomen and its organs into proper place; and, like healthy abdominal muscles, it promotes health. It lifts upward and backward—just as Nature does.

Invaluable as the Wonderlift is in doing the work of the weakened muscles, it is even more valuable in PREVENTING such weakness.

Health Makes Style

Furthermore, this uplifting and supporting service, done in Nature's way, also produces the lines of fashion; for, by restoring the fallen organs to their proper places, the figure is actually made smaller and more symmetrical.

No corset is more stylish than the Wonderlift. Its marvelous health service, though priceless, is incidental.

Wonderlift Models For Normal Figures

No. 554—For full figures, 1 short or medium height
No. 555—For taller full figures; higher bust and back
No. 556—For slender to medium figures, average height

$5

Two Unique Models for Abnormal Figures

No. 558—For very large, flabby women, with heavy, hanging abdomen, much excess fat everywhere. The greatest corset ever made for this type. Big sizes only—30 to 44

No. 557—The other extreme—for very slim figures, sharp hip bones, concave abdomen. A true novelty. Sizes 18 to 26, 25.

Wonderlift Corsets are correctly fitted in most good stores. If you get the right model in the right size, and that you adjust it correctly.

How to Look Years Less Than Your Age

The most aged face will look years younger after the use of ordinary mercury.

With water and soap, the face will look years younger after the use of ordinary mercury.

This remarkable substance, because of its peculiar absorptive power, actually removes the thin velvety fader.

Gradually the skin becomes smoother.

Gradually the fresher, more youthful skin underneath is revealed.

This absorption process being a purely physical one, no artificial complexion is required—quite different from the artificial complexion, which appears anything but natural.

As a result of the action of this substance, the pores of the skin become smaller, and the skin becomes smoother.

BRING SCENIC BEAUTY.
PICTURE-QUE FILM FEATURES TO BE SHOWN THIS WEEK.

You won't need to travel far this week to gaze your fill upon lovely scenic effects. More scenery to the square inch is promised in the motion-picture offerings than in many a long day. Such pictures as "Queens of Hearts Adrift" and "The Heart of Pauline" present the wonderful luxuriance of the tropics. In "Out of the Drifts" one is transported to the snowclad mountain peaks. "Then I'll Come Back to You" finds one in the lumber camp of the North Woods. The "Bondman" locations closely approximate the scenery in such unknown regions as Greenland and the "Isle of Man." The "Kiss of Hate" and "Civilization" have an atmosphere less easily definable, but "The Clansman" smacks of the U. S. A.

to be shown at Tally's Broadway this week. It is from Larry Evans's story of the same name. Alice Brady, well-known stage actress, as well as film favorite, plays the leading role. The photoplay promises to be full of thrilling adventure, as well as sincerely human emotional interest.

Majestic.

"Civilization," the fine feature film, begins its second big week at the Majestic with today's matinee performance.

"Civilization" is an allegorical story of a war that has laughed at the world's daunting boasting, a high-principled war that does not concern itself as to which side is in the right or wrong, but deals with those ranks which are paying the grim penalty—the ranks of humanity.

Victor L. Schertzinger's beautiful music adds much to the effectiveness of the film story. The singing of the large chorus of women is most suitable.

Quinn's Empress.

In response to many requests, the excellent double bill which has been shown at Quinn's Empress during the past week will be repeated this week.

"The Chest," in which Fannie Ward and Sessee Hayakawa share honors, and the Charlie Chaplin ford is first seen as a little Spanish girl, who is shipwrecked and makes friends with the natives.

PLAYS VARIETY OF ROLES.

Tyrone Power's Successes Made in Widely-Different Parts.

It is interesting to know, in connection with the coming engagement of Tyrone Power at the Mason during the week of May 1 that no actor on the stage today has won success in so wide a variety of parts.

Mr. Power, however, an actor should be an impersonator, and he lives up to his own claim. During the year, year after year, he has played with success as widely-different parts as Caliban in "The Tempest," the drainman in "The Servant in the House," Sir Oliver Postgate in "The School for Scandal," and Othello, and Brutus. He found with Mrs. Steyne for several years, creating the rôle of "Harry" in "Majda." The presentation was "The Merchant of Venice" at the Garrick Theatre at Harvey's Hotel, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Theatrical critics, however, had not been able to find him a home, and he was compelled to leave the stage.

CALLING A SPADE A SHOVEL.

Being Some Prudish Comments on Contemporary Men of "Genius"
Whose "Art" is Rather Frank—Also Some Worthy Books, in Which Prof. Van Dyke Discusses the Scenic Value of Mountains, Earl Reed with Text and Pictures Tells of the Dune Country—Education in Japan—Children in Human Progress, and a Book of Essays by Will Lexington Comfort.

FROM time to time we have ventured the opinion that which "great" literature is that which modest people think shocking.

Poor, little, mean, puritanical souls can't see the beauty and verity in the story of how a man seduces his wife's friend, in the romance of the rake's lecher, in the realistic description of erotic concupiscence.

After being satisfied with lyrics and odes, rondels and other dainty lines tripping to a spirited cadence, and other literature not "great" in the sense just defined, it is like climbing Darien Peak to glimpse the ocean of stuff from our new poets.

Some of them, many of them, Courd Aiken, in particular, who, though he fulminates with a pamphleteer's ardor at the gross overstatement given living poets, writes under the visible influence of admiring imitation of Mr. Masters's study of cadavers in the Spoon River graveyard; and most of the conspicuous ones exult not only in the new frankness of the realists, but in the license of the very libertines.

We have at least the normal person's amount of hobbedet; but not sufficient to deny "free verse" value if written as all other things that have value are written—stimulating, that is to say. However, we find it impossible to share the enthusiasm of many obstreperous bards who appear to think that in "free verse" has been discovered the alchemical trick of typographical arrangement and eccentric composition by which mediocrities are draped with the radiant garments of genius.

But the poets are not content with being merely genituses in the arrangement of words so that stale prose takes on until it is real—the appearance of originality.

Their kicks have kicked over the taboo. They snatch from Melipomene the secrets she has hidden in slums and brothels, in houses of assignation, in graves even; and they bring them out with a "frankness" disconcerting to such timid souls as ourselves for instance—who have enjoyed and perhaps still enjoy the ribald vulgarity of Rabelais; will not touch an edition of Montaigne from which the chapter on "Upon Certain Verses of Vergil" is omitted; have gone philandering with Cassanova; think well of Voltaire's "Candide," unpurgated; and even have been guilty of dodging bill collectors so more money might be apportioned to the purchase of "The Golden Bough."

We thought we had an appreciation of "great" literature; but alas, an unsuspected and remote puritanical strain is sadly weakening our delight in sordidness, in chambermaids' tragedies in dirty garrets, in erotic society matrons who bare their shoulders to the lips of a multitude of lovers.

Listen: the publisher of Donald Evans's "Two Deaths in the Bronx" (Nicholas L. Brown), tells us that America should be proud that in Mr. Evans we have "one" authentic poet in this country. Mr. Evans writes of

"If a man toss a silver piece to a beggar
On his way to the first rendezvous
With his wife's friend
He will not feel remorseful for the liaison
He has been generous to one of God's creatures—
That will absolve him!"

Any writer, especially if a poet, will tell anybody who will listen that he would rather be "roasted" than praised; that he is always afraid his work is mediocre unless the critics carp; that "an honor to that" Of course, they may not approve of such lines as these from Mr. Evans:

"If a man toss a silver piece to a beggar
On his way to the first rendezvous
With his wife's friend
He will not feel remorseful for the liaison
He has been generous to one of God's creatures—
That will absolve him!"

Perhaps that is why Mr. Aiken has scorned and scorched so many of his fellow poets—thinking thus with great subtlety to honor them.

BOOKS OF FICTION.

"Uneasy Money."

Pelham Grenville Wodehouse is a rollicking, irrepressible chap who will never get mash notes from pessimistic folk. His name is suspiciously British, but his humor is of the Tom Boyish variety which Americans valiantly think exclusively their own. In "Something New" he filled his readers with chuckles and in "Uneasy Money" (D. Appleton & Co.) he does much the same.

The story is light as the antics of a circus mule. It is gloriously impossible, but with all incidents convoluted toward the amusing. "Bill" Dawlish, an impudent English lord, is informed by the slightly son of his solicitor that a comparative stranger—an eccentric American millionaire—has cut off his niece and nephew and left him, Dawlish, $50,000.

The good-hearted Bill feels like a thief, and immediately comes to America to square his conscience through an honest division with the shadowy heiress. Of course, she has heard of him and hates him—but Bill has cautiously provided himself with an alias, so she meets him without knowing who he is.

That's but a narrow peep at the story. A lot of amusing characters are involved, the plot is full of the charming lady who was engaged to Bill and broke away before he heard of his fortune; and her friend, another chorus lady who has an English title for a husband, and adores a "cute" snake and a wily monkey. Also there is an automobile manufacturer who learns that innocence is no barrier to a suspicion of guilt when the monkey is murdered and a fine press-agent story is spoiled for the nimble-legged chorus lady.

"Uneasy Money" is a frolicsome story, deftly adjusted to requirements of "light" reading.

"Adam's Garden."

"Adam's Garden" (J. P. Lippincott Company) is slightly whimsical and very much the complicated story with an aviatrix for a heroine, a freakish last will and testament for the plot dynamo, numerous secret holes but the villain and a decent but unimpassioned society young man for the hero.

Adam is an evening suit and pumps, finds himself without a home but in possession of a hurdy-gurdy; and with his music box goes about collecting pennies for breakfast. In six months he would have come into property, but by one of the provisions of the will, he is required to make improvements on it; and having no money to make them, he abandons the idea. But the story would have been spoiled if Adam had possessed the resourcefulness that seems natural under the circumstances.

He spends the night with a junkman and the junkman decamps with the hurdy-gurdy, leaving his junk pile, business and good will to Adam, who then sets about making a garden and being happy. Now the villainous second heir, who finds it inconvenient to wait six months, plots murder and hires a gun man to do the work. But the sweetheart of the gun man loves Adam, and—as women have a way of doing—interferes with the plans. Incidentally—only it isn't incidentally, but very important—she explains to the heroine who has figured all through the story, that Adam has never done anything improper, but has been faithful to her, the aviatrix.

Quite unexpectedly the plot tosses up a situation near the end of the book that for all time puts the villain to shame and leaves Adam a capitalist as well as a gardener.

The boy carries the interest along easily, has plenty of stimulating complications and is unreal enough to be enjoyed without the least effort.

"The Carnival of Destiny."

To Vance Thompson, reincarnation is the determinate factor in personality; and while "The Carnival of Destiny" (Moffat, Yard & Co.) is in the guise of fiction, behind the theme is belief. Eight stories are in the book, and the first begins in the darkened scenes when man began to stand erect and huddle together with his fellows. The last is an interpretative incident in the life of Edgar Allan Poe.

Throughout them all appears the girl strangely beautiful with witchery in her body and a love of red in her garments; men—the same, or those she has known before in other lives—see her and love her. Always tragedy follows.

Apart from the catenulated theme, the stories in this volume have stirring qualities, though a pity judge of fiction—which we ourselves may feel some incidents abnormal even in romance, as when the adopted daughter of the Romans sends the message to Attila offering herself to him; as when Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots, succumbs through old love to the lips of an adventurer.

"The Emperor's Gift" is a gem; and tells of how Napoleon thrust one of his colonels into marriage with the daughter of the aristocracy—the colonel having outraged her when he was a sergeant.

All of Mr. Thompson's stories have a strong degree of atmosphere which the times into which they are cast; but pre-eminent in this regard is the last, "A Tenebris of Black Fumes." A story of Poe, and with the world's mouldy wizardry of Poe's own pen. It interprets the mystery that haunted him.

"The Carnival of Destiny" is marked with a certain poetic gracefulness that speeds the narrative,

Mr. Thompson's phrases are quick and full of color; he draws his characters and scenes rapidly and impressively.

"Souls on Fifth."

Granville Barker's sense of humor gave out before he finished "Souls on Fifth" (Little, Brown & Co.), which he has called "the slight study of an American Hereafter." It's regrettable that he couldn't be satiric through the whole of the sixty-one pages in this Swedesbergian revelation of where New Yorkers go when they die; for much of it is very fine. But when the satire develops into a serious romance involving a man of the flesh and the departed soul of a woman—her soul being a nebulous article, flat like a pancake (that's not Mr. Barker's descriptive phrase) with a silver streak in it, and of a size that may be conveniently carried in the palm of the hand; and though the author attempts to put anguish and pathos into this romance, we don't see how anyone can get into a sympathetic mood.

Mr. Barker is a distinguished dramatist and a successful producer; and the net of his fancy caught a unique idea for "Souls on Fifth."

The story is related in the first person; and we are informed that while walking at night along Fifth Avenue he was surprised to see the souls of those who had died clustered about in odd places, and blows like bits of tissue by every wind. He acquired skill at finding souls, and talked with them—with that of a minister who was rather disappointed in God for having such an unsatisfactory hereafter for His faithful; with that of a pious business man who was incensed at his pastor for drawing such a false picture of the rewards of godliness; with many others, too, and satiric pictures are made of their predicament.

Mr. Barker is a distinguished dramatist and a successful producer; and the net of his fancy caught a unique idea for "Souls on Fifth."

The story is related in the first person; and we are informed that while walking at night along Fifth Avenue he was surprised to see the souls of those who had died clustered about in odd places, and blows like bits of tissue by every wind. He acquired skill at finding souls, and talked with them—with that of a minister who was rather disappointed in God for having such an unsatisfactory hereafter for His faithful; with that of a pious business man who was incensed at his pastor for drawing such a false picture of the rewards of godliness; with many others, too, and satiric pictures are made of their predicament.

TO STOP WEDDING IN HASTE.

Uniform State Laws Designed to Check Increasing Laxity.

BY WALTER GEORGE SMITH,

Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions of the National Divorce Congress; Member of the Pennsylvania Commission on Uniform State Laws.

THESE are no subjects of a social nature which appeals more directly to the interest of all members of the community than that of marriage. The family being the social unit, and every marriage being intended to form a new household, it becomes a matter of public concern and is recognized as such in all civilized countries. The marriage laws of many States have shown a tendency to greater strictness, some of them having abolished what was known as common law marriage, and requiring for their validity a license from the State. In other commonwealths, where no license is required, the custom of publishing banns survives.

Divorces are not the only evil consequences which follow ill-considered marriages. It often happens that the parties contract this most solemn relation without a thorough knowledge of each other's character and antecedents, and lifelong unhappiness follows. This is the "surgeon of divorce" not applied.

The conference of commissioners on uniform State laws has prepared a marriage act which is made up of the best features of the laws of various States. Some of the requirements of these have been adopted. It abolishes common law marriages. Its requirements may be divided into two classes: First, those which, on grounds of public policy, may be considered as emanating from a violation of which should be severely punished; and, second, those which may arise from no fault of the parties themselves and may, therefore, be regarded as merely formal. Of the first class, one authorizing a license or a person authorized to officiate, a declaration of the parties that they take each other as husband and wife, and the presence of at least two competent witnesses. Of the second class are those relating to formalities and irregularities. For violation of the first class of requirements the marriage should be declared void, and of the second class, voidable only and then if the party against whom it shall have been confirmed by the acts of the injured party after knowledge of the fact.

The ease with which many marriages of young people can be made has been a powerful factor for the ruin of homes and has given ample work to the divorce courts. It was long ago pointed out, at the divorce congress of 1906, that the relation of law marriage laws to the spread of divorce is almost infinite.

The law looks upon marriage only as a civil contract. It does not recognize anything about it as supernatural. But the law invests it, none the less, with a sanctity greater than that of any other contract. The parties have changed their status in the eyes of the law; they are bound to each other in the special matrimonial relation until death.

Divorce laws are unknown still in many modern nations, and where they have been introduced it has been on the theory that, in exceptional cases, the object of the matrimonial relation having been defeated by the misconduct of one of the parties, the other should be released from the bond. It has come to pass, however, owing to peculiar

ALEXIS THE JUG.

Translated from the Russian by Jeanne Redman.

Alexis was the younger son. He had been nicknamed the Jug, because one day his mother, having sent him to take a jug of milk to the deacon's wife, he stumbled and broke the jug. His mother beat him and the children teased him about the jug. "Alexis the Jug!" And the nickname clung to him. Alexis was small and thin, with ears standing out like wings and a very large nose. The children used to call him: "Alexis' nose looks like a dog on a hill!"

There was a school in the village, but Alexis scarcely profited by it; he did not have the time for learning. His older brother worked for a merchant in town, and Alexis, still a young child, began to help his father. At the age of 6, accompanied by some little girls, he watched the sheep and cows in the pasture, and little later on his duty was to take care of the horses day and night. From the age of 12, he could plow and drive. He had not much strength, but he was very skillful. He was tall, and when the children made fun of him, he was silent or he laughed. When his father scolded him, he was silent and listened, and as soon as the scolding was over, he smiled and returned to his work.

At the age of 19 years old when his brother left to serve his term in the army, and his father sent Alexis to the merchant as porter. They gave Alexis his brother's old boots, his father's cap, and a coat, and took him to town. Alexis admired his brother, but the merchant did not seem to be satisfied with his appearance.

"I thought you were going to send me a man to take Semion's place," said the merchant, who examined Alexis, "and look at the boy you've brought me. What is he good for?"

"He can do anything; harness the horses, bring in the wagons, and he works very well. He looks like a capable. And what's more, he is very modest."

"Oh, well! What's to be done? We shall see. Leave him."

And so he did. He lived with the merchant. The merchant's family was not large; his wife, his old mother, a married son, who had had little schooling, and who worked with his father; another son, well educated, who had finished his studies at the school, had then entered the university, from where he was expelled, and who now lived at home, and finally, a daughter, still at the public school.

At first Alexis did not give satisfaction, though he was much the peasant, too, clownish, illbred and too familiar with everybody. But soon he grew accustomed to him. He even better than his master.

The master never argued. Put him to work, and he would work, quickly, changing from another without rest, as well as at the house, his work was put upon him. He worked, the more he was helped, nor to have one's boots

Dandruff Surely Destroys the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it there, so you can't entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid soap; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid soap at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

It is not confined to any special class of society, nor, I would seem, to any locality in the United States, South Carolina being the only State that the law does not recognize divorce of any kind. There is a strong and influential school of sociologists, many of whom occupy professorships in our universities and colleges, who assert that divorce, from a moral point of view, is a national scandal, affecting the entire nation as the legitimacy of children, ownership of property and the grave evils incident to the destruction of the family unit. It is a fact that there can be no peace in one State to one person and in another to another, because certain of the States refuse to recognize divorce granted where there has been no common matrimonial domicile, and where publication has been made by publication alone.

These subjects never fail to attract attention. Scandals arising from migratory divorces and from evasions of the decrees of divorce courts forbidding remarriage of the guilty, are all the talk in the press, but it may be doubted whether, outside of the one Christian church which forbids divorce to its members, there is any real apprehension of the dangers toward the permanence of the family unit by reason of the spread of divorce. The evil consequences of divorce are not visited on parents alone, but on the children, on those whose well-being is the well-being of the future State dependent.

Anything that can be done as a palliative to check the tendency towards the destruction of the family should be most earnestly considered. One can doubt that a movement, in the interest of the protection of marriage, and in the final approval of the marriage itself by the sanction of the law, is devoutly to be urged.

European countries set a good example in the strictness with which they guard the institution of marriage. In all of them greater care is taken than in the majority of our States, and while it is true that divorce is recognized in most of these countries, its growth has been nowhere so great in proportion to population as in our country.

While the relation of the child to the parent in European countries demands a longer and stricter subordination than in America, there is nothing to prevent the return of our American laws so as to require in all cases a license after due notice, a proper interval of time for objections after the license has been granted, and a prompt publication of the marriage itself. All of these requirements are met by the provisions of the uniform law.

WHAT? Then you already have someone in view, and she—

"Yes . . . I'd like to take you, would you have me?"

"There's a jug! And how well he said that!" said she, tapping him on the shoulder. "Why shouldn't I have you?"

Alexis was afraid. He felt that it would prevent his doing his work as well as usual. Nevertheless, he tossed his head and smiled. Often, while working or doing an errand, he would think of her and murmur: "Aah! Oustinia." Oustinia helped him as much as she could, and, on his part, did all he could to help her. She told him the story of her life; how her aunt had taken her to her own home, then placed her in the town; how the merchant's son had made advances to her, and how she had repelled him. "She likes to talk, and him to listen to her. He had heard that peasants living in town often marry cooks. One time she asked him if he were soon to be married. He replied that he had not heard of it and that he would not care to marry a girl from his village.

Often, while working or doing an errand, he would think of her and murmur: "Aah! Oustinia." Oustinia helped him as much as she could, and, on his part, did all he could to help her. She told him the story of her life; how her aunt had taken her to her own home, then placed her in the town; how the merchant's son had made advances to her, and how she had repelled him. "She likes to talk, and him to listen to her. He had heard that peasants living in town often marry cooks. One time she asked him if he were soon to be married. He replied that he had not heard of it and that he would not care to marry a girl from his village.

"What? Then you already have someone in view, and she—

"Yes . . . I'd like to take you, would you have me?"

"There's a jug! And how well he said that!" said she, tapping him on the shoulder. "Why shouldn't I have you?"

Alexis was afraid. He felt that it would prevent his doing his work as well as usual. Nevertheless, he tossed his head and smiled. CREAM OF SEASON
AT WASHINGTON.
DRAG HUNT PARTIES AT THE COUNTRY CLUBS.

Wilson's in the Thick of the Social Stuff and Spend a Good Deal of Their Time Cruising on the Presidential Yacht Mayflower, that has been Made a Honeymoon Craft.

BY HARRY CARR.

[BY DIRECT LINE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.] WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, April 19.—This is the most charming season of the year in Washington. Since October the city has been haggard and gaunt with the skeletons of leafless trees. Now it is bursting out in green. Society people are putting away their furs and the open carriages are taking the place of the limousines. The country clubs are giving drag hunt parties. Down by the river, a polo tournament with all the swells in the saddle has started. Every who's-who family is in Washington, and Wilson's has rented a cottage in East Gloucester on the North Shore of Massachusetts. At the first hot weather, they will fit. For some reason East Gloucester is the resort for all fit to live.

The Wilsons are in the thick of the social stuff. There was a practice polo game on Saturday, preliminary to the formal opening, or the tournament and the President and Mrs. Wilson motored down to watch it. They were the stars for the rest of the butterflies in the official circle and they stamped for the scene.

One of the players was Earl Hopking of New York, who was a substitute on Harry Payne Whitney's international team. I don't know that this is much of a boost for Mr. Hopking, one of the horses, however, Party Boy, which was ridden in the last tournament, by Capt. Leslie St. C. Cheape.

Not that I really care a whoop about Capt. Cheape's old cast of ponies, or Washington society ponies, but they are good ponies, or anything else about them. But it makes me feel very smobblish and exclusive to write all about it; so I write all about it.

ENJOY THE MAYFLOWER.

The Wilsons are the only Presidents people have ever got any fun out of the Executive yacht Mayflower. They tell me that the only way Col. Roosevelt could enjoy yachting was to station the whole United States navy out in the middle of the stream; then steam around and let them fire salutes in his honor. Mr. Taft was President the Mayflower lay for four years at her moorings accumulating barnacles.

Mr. Wilson, however, makes the old Mayflower work overtime. Well, anything during the first two summers of his administration the Mayflower left Washington every week-end, sailed off down the bay. On these trips, the President was accompanied by Secretary Tumulty and Dr. Grayson. This spring, the Mayflower has deserted the Mayflower, and Secretary Tumulty and Dr. Grayson have been mustered out of the ship's company.

Among the many Californians in town is our old friend Bill Pickens. Bill is the impresario who used to write stories by the dozens about Barney Oldfield. Every time Barney took part in a race Bill had him saying a sad farewell to the old cruel world. Barney always had a premonition that "this will be my last race." He always had a hunch he was going to be killed in the race this afternoon and I have that feeling, too." Whereupon we closed the store for the afternoon and beat it to the park where we punged from 50 cents up to see Bill had him say a sad farewell to the old cruel world.

Barney always had a premonition that "this will be my last race." He always had a hunch he was going to be killed in the race this afternoon and I have that feeling, too." Whereupon we closed the store for the afternoon and beat it to the park where we punged from 50 cents up to see Bill had him say a sad farewell to the old cruel world.

Bill is now chaperoning De Lord Thompson, the aviator. He hasn't any premonitions that the end of the aviator is at hand. He only has a superstition that the end of the United States is at hand—unless it is personal aviation.

On the other night Mr. Pickens hired eight newspaper photographers and nearly scared the Saturday night crowds into a violent fit by soaring around the Washington Monument and dropping bombs. Many wealthy householders wake in Washington this morning to find paper-bag bombs in their yards warning them thus: "This might just as well have been nitro-glycerine." There were so many bombs in front yards of Washington this morning that I have a terrible suspicion that Bill made a stealthy flight around town in the small hours in an automobile and helped the aeroplane out.

MANY CALIFORNIANS.

W. G. Hard, Powell of the California Farmers' Exchange here, is in the interest of the lemon tariff. California has had a rotted deal on that. After all the personal promises of President Wilson, the administration leaders in Congress have zipped rough shod over the lemon industry. The day the Italian vote of New York they have gaily forced our fruit men to walk the plank.

Two or three representatives of the California wine interests have been here all winter trying to make a square deal for the California grapes from the Wilson administration. This fight, too, has practically been lost. The only way the United States will get a reduction of the murder-on-the-water line to drop their fight against the adulterated wines of Ohio and Virginia.

Attorney Edward G. Kuster of Los Angeles is here trying to persuade the government to build a road to the top of Mt. Whitney from the border between Kern county and the Sequoia National Park. At some future time this road might be built, but there isn't much chance of getting $200,000 out of this administration for any highway project. The money goes now south on fake river projects to bolster up the political fences of the southern colonels. Kuster created a mild surprise at the hotel by coming in with a cello. He is an accomplished musician, and realizing that there would be many long hours of waiting here, brought his music along.

A WEATHER FAN.

Where Kuster finds solace in mud, ex-Gov. Gillett, who is here in the interests of California oil, finds consolation in weather reports. The Governor is the "champion weather fan. He haunts the weather bulletin boards, and can tell you the temperature and rainfall in every good-sized city in the United States. He is much chagrined to be compelled to give this verdict: That Port-

"I AM THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE."

I am the Resurrection and the Life,
Oh, Earth, rejoice!
I come to still the tumult and the strife;
List to my voice.

Forth from my Father's glory, lo I came;
Lift up thy head;
For love of thee, to bear thy guilt and shame;
To raise the dead.

Before my Father's ever-sinless eyes,
Thy sins I bore;
For thee became a thing that men despise,
And even more.

I left my heavenly kingdom and my throne;
For love of thee;
I ransom'd thee with ransom all my own;
I set thee free.

I came, I came to do my Father's will;
The cup to drain;
Of bitterness and gall I drank the fill;
Is it vain?

Thrones and dominions gave me endless praise;
Yet for thy sake
I chose to walk earth's sorrow-haunted ways,
 Thy bonds to break.

The seraphim of heaven cannot tell
Of love like mine;
It triumphed over hate and death and hell.
Yet all is thine.

I love thee with a deathless love, sublime;
I died for all;
O son of man from every land and clime,
Hast heard my call?

I am the Resurrection and the Life,
I can atone;
I come to still the tumult and the strife,
To claim my own.

HAPPY THOUGHT CLUB SYMPOSIUM.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

There were several distinguished visitors at yesterday's symposium of the Happy Thought Club. When President Epictetus Toadies came in he was accompanied by a rather tall and slender man whose scenery included an iron gray goat and a pair of shoe-brush eyebrows. He was presented to a number as Senator Woo Fuddy, a member of the North Carolina Legislature, and also an author of some note. For many years he wrote about all the obituaries in poetry in his town of Prunesville. In his effort to save the corpse of Seth Higgins, who was killed in a poker game, was said to have been one of the best things ever printed in the Prunesville Chronicle. Senator Woo Fuddy is a dandy and in the heaven-bred breeder of blind pigs in his native State. He says he prefers the sightless kind, and do not wonder too far for the home place. The happy was the man who bore the historic name of the Governor of North Carolina to the South Carolina executive, he being selected because of his carrying capacity. While in California he is a political name.

On motion of the secretary the thanks of the club were extended to Miss Mary for her visit and her offering.

Cassandra Vogelsang of Watts sent in a design for the club button. Her suggestion is for a little circular medallion with the words, "Look and Laugh" around the border.

Willis Chase, of Pasadena, suggested a ginger-snap with a pin run through its center. "A ginger-snap to go happy thought and you could eat it if you happen to be hungry," he wrote.

The secretary and committee were instructed to continue the competition for the design of the club badge. The competitor for the most wacky award of an appealing side for the club sessions was also extended.

In connection with the Shakespearean anniversary a communication was read from Izzy Bunk asking the club to contribute $3000 for a permanent wagon to be used by him while collecting $10,000,000 for a permanent memorial to the Bard of Avon. When it was learned that this enduring memorial was to take the form of a touch-hotel and saloon to be run in Izzy's basement the club will continue to celebrate and honor Shakespeare in its own way.

A communication was read from Congressman Charles R. Crisp asking the club to come out strongly for the prohibition amendment and suggesting that the members put out a star cast of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" to be used as an object lesson over the State.

Chairman Brown moved to amend by striking the play "Rip Van Winkle" with the Old Timer Irip.

The whole matter was laid on the table for future discussion.

Several members of the club agreed to go Maying with Louise Josephine Wiggle and visit the wild post of the Verdugo Hills. They will take a shaving outfit along as a friendly offering in case the hermit should yield to the wave of reform.

The symposium ended by all those present responding to a Shakespearean quiz, each of the members giving a short selection from the works of the big bard.

Miss Mary Landor talked to the club briefly but vigorously on the emancipation of women. As a girl her ambition was to grow up and be a white swan, and she greatly heightened the complexion by illustrating her thought by charming little ballad from her own writings. It ran as follows:

"Dead, but Much Alive."
When Elsie from her rural home had died,
Dazzled by tales of buoyant life,
Old Farmer Gray in sadness bowed his head.
As martyr died before the tyrant's knife.

With tear-stained eyes the mother sought his hand.
"A long consultation to extend.
Yet our own grief she could not quite withstand,
And turned her face to Heaven for a friend."

The months passed on and meager tidings brought

The "Duchess"

—another exclusive Cousins creation

A new and exclusive combination or "two-tone" effect. The vamp and collar are in tan kid—the upper in white kid. We are featuring many exclusive "two-tone" effects in Cousins boots—models that will add character and distinction to your costume.

Style is the dominant feature in women's footwear this season. None but master boot designers can impart true style, chic and lasting beauty, as well as honest wearing quality to feminine footwear.

Cousins Shoes for Women are the product of America's master designers. They retain their marked individuality, beauty and style to the very last.

And to obtain all these winning features in these handsome super-models for no more than you pay for just ordinary footwear.

The two points about a shoe—its smartness and its fit—are two points in our shoe service which have helped to build our reputation. Our duty and our pleasure is to fit you perfectly before we let you purchase.

Nothing so robes a woman of her good looks and attractiveness as gray, streaked or faded hair. And, there is more to it than a sense of taste or sense in tolerating such a hair. There is more than there is in wearing unbecoming hair.

The one best way to keep hair in "Brownstone" is to dye it. It is safe, it is easy to use. No mixing. Just comb or brush over your hair. If it cannot be detected, it will not wash off, acts instantly, and is absolutely harmless.

given the past week with the Easter motif as the chief idea for the gatherings, and many charmingly arranged dinners characterized by the use of bunnies and Easter eggs.

Inside the walls, portraits,

among them none more happy,

passed than that given by Mrs. D.

L. Cohen, who gave an Easter luncheon on Tuesday afternoon at home of Gladys Fritz.

The table in the dining-room was rounded by rabbits and little white rabbits, a huge rooster getting ready to crow, and many tiny baby chicks of different colors.

Those present at the daintily appointed luncheon were the Misses,

R. C. Ingalls and F. J. White, Miss Holmes, Mrs. Herman W. Hansen, F. J. Bullock, George Haneschka, William Vandorn, Calvin Pickens and Mrs. L. E. Elmore.

Mrs. Harry Broslaski was hostess to the members of the Entre Nous

Club on Thursday afternoon at her home on El Redondo. The house was beautifully decorated with white downs. Easter cards also were hand-painted with a dainty Easter design. The prizes were tea napkins and guest towels, which had been beautifully embroidered by Mrs. Broslaski.

Redondo Beach included the Misses, William Culler, Lester C.

Neff, Marshall Craig, La Rock (who substituted for Mrs. B. A. Minor), I.

Knight.

Miss Anna Tremberth met a bevy of friends at the Tremberth home on Wednesday afternoon, the affair being one of the most popular parties during the summer time. The home was the mecca for a group of friends who gathered there Saturday for a house party over the weekend. Among the easterners present were Mr. Henry

Brandt and daughter Miss Luella

Brandt, Frederick McCormas, and

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Hampstead all

MESSAGE STIRS FEAR OF DEATH.

Ending All, Says a Telegram to Student's Fiance.

All a Joke, Explains Member of Her Family Here.

Strange Mix-up Ascribed to Broken Engagement.

D. P. Campbell, a student at the University of Kentucky in Lexington, became very much perturbed yesterday when he received a telegram containing what he believed to be the intimation of a tragedy, according to dispatches from that city last night.

It was stated by Mr. Campbell that the message came from Miss Mary Moore Spencer, his fiancee, who is a student at the Girls' Collegiate Institute in this city, and that she had threatened to commit suicide.

The alleged telegram is as follows:

"D. P. Campbell, "Los Angeles, Cal." "Urgent. No House, Lexington, Ky. Am ending all tonight; have been miserable. Am returning belongings. Good-bye."

[Signed] "W. H. Mr. Campbell explained that "W.H." is the pseudonym used by his fiancee in their correspondence. The young man is a student in the College of Agriculture at the university.

At the residence of Mrs. Mary L. Clarke, grandmother of Miss Mary Moore, 515 South Coronado street, it was denied last night that the latter had sent a telegram announcing her intention of ending her life. She was also emphatically denied the press young woman had attempted suicide and had contemplated such an act.

"This story is a huge joke," representative of Miss Spencer's family said. "Miss Spencer sent a telegram to Mr. Campbell several days ago in which she declared that she had decided to break their engagement. It is her opinion that her former fiancee is somewhat puffed, and is attempting to exploit the matter in this manner."

Ugh!

SHARK MEAT AS FOOD.

Man-eaters are Being Sold in Eastern Markets as Deep-water Swordfish and Seem to be Relished.

IRVING A. P. CORRESPONDENCE:

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Present experiments are being conducted by the United States Bureau of Fisheries in the preparation of shark meat as a food. Fishermen report that there is a good demand for the bait, and a demand for the article will be created. Even now, they say, sharks are more universally eaten than is generally known, as trap fishermen of the Mediterranean still catch the large species of shark, with one exception, caught in their traps. The head, fins and tail are removed and the shark then looks like a deepwater swordfish. When prepared, it is shipped to New York and sold as deepwater swordfish. The fishermen receiving from 3 to 8 cents a pound.

In the United States there is a prediction that results in waste of shark meat should result in waste of food which should be a resource, fisheries experts declare. In England and Wales almost 6,000,000 pounds of shark meat were landed in 1915. As the flesh of these small sharks, when properly prepared, is palatable, there appears to be no valid reason against its use, officials say.

(New York World.) "What is the difference between a fly and a butterfly?"

A fly is a baseball battoned to a certain altitude. Buckwheat cakes make the butter fly.

This is one answer. But if you arrest it to the police Lieutenant you will be conducted politely to the mental studio of Dr. Louis E. Bisch of Columbia University, official psychologist and alienist to the New York police department.

Police officers even to every one of the 553 police lieutenants a list of questions a Lieutenant must ask any person arraigned before him whose health he doubts.

The doctor has also presented to every police officer a list of ten simple problems, which are to be submitted to the subject who appears to be a "nut."

If the suspected person fails to answer most of the questions and problems he turns to Dr. Bisch.

Here are some questions or commands the lieutenants are instructed to ask or deliver:

"What is a book?"

"What is a table?"

"What is a house?"

"What day is this?"

Some highly intelligent persons could not answer that at 12:03 a.m.

"What is the difference between wood and glass?"

"What is the difference between paper and cloth?"

"Count backward from twenty to one."

"Give me the days of the week, the month, the year."

"Repeat the numbers, 44,932, 62,127, 437,159, 6,419,586."

"What ought one to do when one has missed a train?"

"What ought one to do when one has been struck by some one who did not run over him?"

"What ought one to do when one has broken something that does not belong to him?"

"Why does one judge a person more by what he does than by what he says?"

"Make up a statement, using the words 'New York,' 'money' and 'river' and other words that may be necessary to form a complete thought."

"Give three words that rhyme with 'day' with 'man' with 'hill'."

Dr. Bisch has been at the line-up of prisoners in police headquarters every morning recently. He took the prisoners who appeared mentally or morally defective to his brain laboratory and examined them daily. The punishment of medical treatment of the prisoners depended upon Dr. Bisch's diagnosis. Thus, if a man answered correctly, "Twice two makes four," he was merely fined five. If he said, "Minus ten equals two cold bottles," the psychopathic ward at Bellevue opened for him.

English Coffee Houses.

[Pat. Mail Gazette.] Coffee, though its use in England is not large nowadays comparatively, has stamped its name curiously on the national history and language. Even to this day in old-fashioned hotels the dining-room is the coffee-room. It was in 1821 that Evelyn noted how "there came in to the college one Nathaniel Compton out of Greece. He was the first I ever saw drink coffee, which custom came not into England until very after." Another authority says that in 1652 "one Mr. Edwards, a Turkey merchant, brought home with him a Greek servant, who understood the roasting and making of coffee and kept a house in London for that purpose." That was the first coffee house, which played so large a part in our early eighteenth century history and were the forerunners of the clubs.

Feet are His Fortune.

[Pittsburgh Dispatch.] "Soda," Amite City, (Pa.)—Heavy-pedaled pickaninnies, has left the side show circus where his big feet were marveled at by the crowds, and is now engaged in interstate highway work. He has many contracts in view.

"We are much given to walking alone; hence doubt and despondency.

of long after the Crucifixion of Christ two of his sorrowing disciples were going from Jerusalem down to Emmaus, when the Lord Himself fell in with them and "opened unto them the Scriptures concerning Himself;" and the record runs that "their hearts burned within them while He talked with them by the way."

Let us hear the Master's stately steppings as He draws near. He would fain walk with us and open unto us the Scriptures concerning Himself.

So shall life be no longer a confusion of threads and thums, but the orderly casting of a shuttle to and fro in the weaving of a celestial robe. So shall history seem no more a discord of fortuitous events, but an oratorio pervaded by this dominant note, "I am He that speaketh in righteousness: travelling in the greatness of my strength, mighty to save!"

So shall the future open up before us as a journey, through the night indeed, but overarched by multitudinous stars of promise.

In the pathway of those stars we shall still come upon many graveyards; but they will be all astir, and beyond them we shall see the open gates of a City that hath foundations whose builder and maker is God.

AGENTS ACTIVE AMONG PAPAGOS

Mexicans Seeking Recruits to Join Their Army.

Meningitis Situation is Now Well Under Control.

Sinking of Artesian Well may Start Oil Flow.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 21.—Stories have been floating into Tucson that Mexican agents have been busy of late among the Papago Indians, south of Tucson, seeking recruits for the Mexican army. It happens that many of the Indians may be considered residents of Mexico, as they live only a part of the year north of the line. Among these there is understood to have been something of an element of young men southward. The time is very trying to the Americans and nothing but support for the United States may be expected from it. Indeed, many of the younger men have had some military training in Indian schools and would make very good and useful soldiers.

For months now, however, apprehension is coming from any point on the border, where the Mexican expedition southward seems to be at its height. The main nation of the "hold-up." The machine and the American's person were closely searched, but nothing was taken. The episode occurred near Ogleby, fully three miles north of the international line.

MENINGITIS SITUATION.

BISBEE (Ariz.) April 21.—There is little doubt that the meningitis situation here now is thoroughly under control. There have been four deaths. Two other cases are believed to be in the course of recovery. Surgeon-General Rupert Blue of the United States Health Service has been fully advised of the local situation and has wired that he will send no representative, believing that Health Officer Herderdeen had done all that is necessary. He recommends that the schoolastic gatherings and the school sessions be continued for two weeks, although the period of activity of disease carriers is indefinite. Especial care is being taken with the town's milk supply, which is being pasteurized.

His wife submitted a clear statement that for herself and five children, Tampa in ten months had contributed only $30. This man tells that Geronimo really was a Mexican, stolen by the Apaches in childhood.

UNSCRAMBLING THE RAILROADS.

[Waterbury American.] Statistics compiled by the Railroad Gazette from official sources show that new railroad construction in the United States for 1915 covered fewer miles than the construction for any year since 1884. In fact, since 1884, with the exception of the years of 1901 and 1902, the new roads shown in the Gazette were longer than any other year.

Subsequent to this hour, developments in the community and news items which make it necessary to be quick and effective publications. Therefore, the "Too Late to Classify" column is given to the greater number of stories which are not of the character of the news columns. They also show that more miles of railroad were in receivers' hands during the year than ever before. This is partly due to natural conditions, but to a large degree it is to be credited to the financial difficulties created by the interference of the government with natural policies of development. The facts show the effects of what Mr. Morgan spoke of as the attempt to unscramble eggs.

PHOENIX WANTS NITROGEN PLANT

Plenty of Power Available at Roosevelt Dam.

Many Companies are Boring for Oil Near City.

Well-known Yuma Man is Drowned While Fishing.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) April 20.—A suggestion has been made that the great water power capabilities of this locality be utilized in securing one of the nitrogen manufacturing plants for which provision has been made by Congress. At the present time a surplus of electrical energy, generated at the Roosevelt dam and at drops in the valley's canal system, though Miami and Superior are heavy users from the Reclamation Service power system. In the canyon of Salt River, below the Roosevelt dam, at least 20,000 horses power could be developed at relatively light cost.

BORING FOR OIL.

A dozen companies are reported to be boring for oil above Roosevelt, where one Globe corporation actually has found paraffin base petroleum. Another well, now down 1,400 feet, has high pressure, but no oil flow is expected before a depth of 2,200 feet has been attained. Oil seepage is claimed in another bore now only 500 feet deep.

WOMEN MINERS.

The Murdoch Extension Mining Company has property near the Boundary Creek, south of Oatman, Mohave county, is a remarkable sort of corporation. In it has been organized and financed by women, who fill all but one of its offices. It is directed by Miss Mabel Musser Rawlings, secretary of the Woman's Democratic League of Los Angeles county, and Mrs. Floribell M. Rogers, sister of the manager of the nearby Gold Road mine. The latter is K. K. Rogers of Phoenix, daughter of a former territorial treasurer of Arizona.

G.A.R. ELECTS.

George W. Barrows of Phoenix was elected department commander at the annual meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic, held in Phoenix yesterday. A. J. Sampson, former commander-in-chief of the department, will continue in the office. About one-half the strength of the department is concentrated in Phoenix, where the post is even growing in membership, while all other posts are failing away.

REV. SCARLETT TO STAY.

Rev. William Scarlett, man of the Episcopal Church in Phoenix, has declined a handsome offer from Grace Church of Providence, R. I., and will remain here.

PAY FULL PAYROLL.

A conflict between national and State authority has materialized over a contract made by the United States Reclamation Service with the Phoenix-Roosevelt Irrigation line for transportation of its employees at a reduced fare. The Arizona Corporation Commission has decided that the practice is discriminatory and must be stopped.
